NIA heat on Jamaat, raids 56 J&K premises

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

THE National Investigation Agency on Sunday launched a major crackdown on the banned Jamaat-e-Islami (JeI), with raids at 56 locations in all 10 districts of Kashmir and four in Jammu on premises tied to it in connection with terror funding. The raids were jointly conducted along with the local police and the CRPF.

Premises of the office bearers of the proscribed association, its members and also offices of trusts purportedly run by the JeI were searched. Various incriminating documents and electronic devices were seized, an NIA spokesperson said.

JeI was banned in 2019 for its alleged close links with terror outfits. The Home ministry's ban order came a fortnight after a suicide attack on a CRPF convoy at Pulwama in February 2019 that left 40 personnel dead.

The NIA said the members of the organisation have been collecting funds domestically and abroad through donations, particularly in the form of Zakat and Mowda (paying a share of individual income for the cause) as also Bait-ul-Mal (donation for poor), purportedly to further charity activities, but were using it for violent and secessionist activities. The funds raised by the JeI are also being channelised to terrorist organisations such as Hizb-ul-Mujahideen and Lashkar-e-Taiba, the NIA said.

Constitution amend bill to see rare House unity

Restoring state right to notify OBCs

As a workaround to the SC directive, the Constitutional 127th Amendment Bill is expected to amend Articles 342 A — clauses 1 and 2 — and introduce clause 342 A (3) specifically authorising states to maintain their state list

Relax 50% cap: Uddhav

The Centre should also relax SC's 50% quota ceiling, which is the stumbling block for Maratha reservation, says Maharashtra Chief Minister Uddhav Thackeray

RICHA SHARMA @ New Delhi

BOTH Houses of Parliament may witness smooth functioning this week for the first time during the monsoon session as the Centre will introduce the Constitutional 127th Amendment Bill restoring powers of states to notify backward classes with full Opposition support as an exception.

Floor leaders of the Opposition parties in both Lok Sabha and Rajya Sabha are scheduled to meet at 10 am at the office of Leader of Opposition in Rajya Sabha Mallikarjun Kharge on Monday to take the final call on the matter and discuss future strategy amid reports that the government may wind up the session early after passage of this bill. The session is anyway scheduled to end on August 13.

Sources said all Opposition parties are on the same page on the importance of the bill, keeping in mind the Assembly elections scheduled early next year. The Congress and other regional parties have been pressing the Centre for bringing an amendment to the 102nd Constitutional amendment Act to overturn the May 5 Supreme Court judgment that vests sole power with the Centre to identify the Other Backward Classes (OBCs) list.

"It is a very important issue and we have suggested that this bill be treated as an exception for participation in the discussion and passing," said a senior Opposition leader, adding there is no stepping back on our demand for a discussion on Pegasus snoopgate.

Both Houses have seen repeated disruptions since the start of the monsoon session on July 19 over the demand to discuss the use of Pegasus to spy on citizens.

For the Constitution to be amended, the bill must be passed in both Houses separately by absolute majority, which is more than 50% of the House strength, and a special majority of two-thirds of those present and voting.

Reopening of Classes 9-12 may be delayed, hints minister

CHETANA BELAGERE & DEVARAJ B HIREHALLI @Bengaluru, Tumakuru

REOPENING of physical classes for students of Classes 9, 10, 11 and 12 on August 23 may be postponed. Newly appointed minister for Primary and Secondary Education BC Nagesh on Sunday told The New Indian Express that this is a tentative date and the exact schedule will be decided after deliberations with officials to understand if adequate preparations have been made in schools and colleges.

"I was busy reviewing the flood situation and Covid. I am yet to meet my department officials. We need to see if preparations are all done," Nagesh said.

Experts in Bengaluru, meanwhile, listed a few challenges before the new minister on not only the urgent need to ensure reopening of physical classes, but also on fee regulation in private schools, teacher transfers etc.

"There is an immediate need to restart physical classes. The earlier decisions were taken in an unscientific manner. This has snatched not only the primary right to education, but also children's right to nutrition and wellbeing. The first challenge before the new minister is to restart schools, especially for primary class students," said educationist Niranjan Aradhya.

The minister said, "This portfolio is challenging. But I believe that while facing the challenges, I will build my capacity." P6

Maharashtra: The Lighthouse of India's industrial dream

Maharashtra is the economic and industrial powerhouse of India and is the largest economy in the country. The state's GSDP is more than USD 400 billion, accounting for almost 15% of the country's GDP. With a contribution of over 15% to the Industrial output of the country, the state records the highest value of exports, accounting for 21% of India's total exports during 2019-20. In fact, Maharashtra was ranked 2nd on NITI Aayog's Export Preparedness Index, 2020.

The state has been a preferred investment destination for foreign investors since the 1991 reforms and has attracted more than USD 140 billion in FDI from 2000-2020, accounting for 30% of India's share. Maharashtra also has the largest pool of trained manpower in the country and the highest employable rate in India.

What is it that makes Maharashtra one of the most preferred investment destination in the country? The state has been known for its dynamic leadership, an efficient administration, vibrant infrastructure, a progressive society and consistency in policies. To support and facilitate infrastructure and investment led growth, the Government of Maharashtra has consistently worked towards providing a strong policy framework comprising demand and supply led incentives and subsidies. In addition, the state offers the highest employable talent due to its constant focus on training, capacity building and upskilling of its manpower. Revolutionary policies including the Industrial Policy, 2019 and the Package Scheme of Incentives, 2019 have influenced the infrastructure led development. Acknowledging the development of infrastructure and logistics, the Government of Maharashtra has displayed high priority towards the development of Transport and allied services. Over 30+ mega projects are currently under development and USD 40 billion is already allocated in developing transport infrastructure around key manufacturing and industrial zones. This has attracted investors across the state and is helping develop logistics equitably

A critical role in bringing investments and ensuring infrastructure development in the state is played by the Maharashtra Industrial Developmental Corporation (MIDC) which is the Government of Maharashtra's nodal investment promotion agency. The corporation is not only the country's largest Industrial development authority but one of South East Asia's most competent Investment Promotion Authority. It provides a single point of contact for all investor relations and manages 289 industrial parks built over 2.25 lakh acres of land across the state. Since its inception, MIDC has enabled the state to achieve an undisputed leadership position with regards to investments and industries. Set up in the year 1962 by the special act of the state government with the mandate to achieve balanced industrial development in Maharashtra, it is the special planning body which operates through a vast network of local offices and acts as an important link between investors and the government. Currently, MIDC administers the investment lifecycle in the state from outreach to aftercare and is responsible for providing essential infrastructure to businesses like land, power, water and more. MIDC as an investment promotion agency is strongly supported by the state government's pro-industry policies and incentive schemes.

Even during the COVID pandemic year 2020, MIDC has facilitated investments commitments worth Rs 1,29,439 crore in one year from June 2020 to June 2021, under the Magnetic Maharashtra 2.0 initiative. The Magnetic Maharashtra 2.0 program was launched by the Hon'Chief Minister in June 2020, to target the restoration of state's economic activity and fight against the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic. In three instalments of Magnetic Maharashtra 2.0 MoU signing events in June, November and December 2020, Maharashtra garnered investment commitments worth INR 112,939 Crores. Besides these investment commitments, the state also attracted regular investments of INR 14,698 Crores & FDI investments of INR 79,216 Crore during the past one year. With these investments, the state has succeeded in mobilizing industrial investments of over INR 2,00,000 crores. Between June 2020 to June 2021, MIDC has signed 56 MOUs with large conglomerates including that from countries such as the US, the United Kingdom, Spain, Japan, Singapore and South Korea.

These commitments underpin the fact that Maharashtra continues to be the powerhouse of industrial development in India. The state's capacity to harbor industrial ecosystem coupled with visionary leaders and policymakers that successfully deploys resources in a strategic manner makes Maharashtra a business destination like no other. Maharashtra has been growing rapidly and is on path to becoming the nation's first trillion-dollar economy.

Economic Development on Wheels
Maharashtra Automobile Industry Ecosystem

Over the recent years, Maharashtra has made a strong comeback in the automobile sector by attracting fresh investments worth billions of dollars and signing MoUs with several multinationals. The automobile industry in Maharashtra has proven to be amongst the leading and most employable sectors of the state. Interestingly, the state records the highest share in automobile sales across the country. With over 4000 manufacturing and ancillary units in Pune alone, the state offers the largest auto hub in the country. In addition, the state has also strategically developed major automobile centers in Pune, Nashik, Aurangabad, Mumbai, and Nagpur.

CHARGING INFRA. INCENTIVES
Public Charging Station (PCS) | Incentive Per PCS Unit
Slow | INR 10,000
Moderate / Fast | INR 5,00,000

Geographically being in the center of the country, Maharashtra is also amongst the most consumption heavy states. This is also thanks to the well qualified work force, a strong vendor base and proximity to ports and major markets which has steeply contributed to the heavy automobile production over the years. In addition, to complement the above, the state also provides well developed infrastructure, connectivity, and incentives, especially via its Industrial Policy 2019, Package Scheme of Incentives 2019, and the Electric Vehicle Policy, 2021. Maharashtra has also taken a lead in utilizing its ready and capable workforce to engage in automobile research and development which targets indigenization, employment generation and localization.

In this regard, additional emphasis has been laid on R & D, testing and certification, MSME development and emission measurement systems via three major institutes namely, the Automotive Research Institute of India (ARAI), Pune, Auto Cluster Development and Research Institute (ACDRI), Pune and Horiba India Technical Center (HITI), Pune.

In line with central government's priority on green mobility and related initiatives taken recently, Maharashtra has left no stone unturned to facilitate the productionh of Electric Vehicles (EVs) in the state. In view of the degrading environmental conditions and increasing fuel prices, the Government of Maharashtra announced the Electric Vehicle Policy 2018, further revising the policy recently in 2021. EV and electric mobility present a wide range of viable solutions to these challenges, accompanied with demand and supply centric incentives, innovative pricing methods, support infrastructure and appropriate technology.

The State's EV Policy is ambitious and aims to build Maharashtra as a model state in the Electric Vehicle sector. Maharashtra being one of the first few states to introduce the state EV policy and provide both consumer and supplier centric incentives, the state has a first mover's advantage. The 2021 EV policy offers many incentives for early adopters of electric vehicles in the state and thus aims to convert 10% of the state's overall automobile to EVs by 2025. Including two-wheelers, three-wheelers, four-wheelers, busses and even transport vehicles, all will attract incentives with a rate set at Rs 5,000/kWh battery capacity till the end of the year.The policy aims to generate over 1lakh new employments; attract investments worth Rs. 25,000 crore and increase number of EV registered vehicles in Maharashtra to 5 lakhs by 2024. It is without a doubt that, one can assume that the sector will thrive and the manufacturing of EVs in the state's automobile clusters would lead to employment and revenue generation. In addition, the policy also aims to provide incentives, subsidies, and assistance towards EV manufacturing, EV component manufacturing, EV charging, among others. Recently, the revised EV policy 2021 launched by the Department of Transport, Maharashtra has also given emphases to creation of public and private charging infrastructure by providing various incentives and benefits to its makers, owners.

Reaching the skies with Aerospace and Defence manufacturing

Maharashtra has a thriving Defence & Aerospace industrial manufacturing ecosystem and has recently facilitated cluster wise development led by one or more anchor units. The Government of Maharashtra has prioritized to develop and promote Maharashtra as the Aerospace & Defence manufacturing and export hub for which, it released the Aerospace & Defence Manufacturing Policy, 2018. Maharashtra already has over 42% of India's efforts in Aircrafts, Spacecrafts and Parts, Ships, Boats and Floating Structures. As the policy specially focuses on developing MSMEs to be the supplier base to anchor units, the Government of Maharashtra now aims to create a corpus of INR 1000 crore to provide initial capital to these MSMEs. The state has already prepared multiple defence manufacturing hubs in Pune, Nagpur, Ahmednagar, Nashik, and Aurangabad, thus contributing substantially to the Center's target of reducing India's dependence on defence and aerospace imports. Nashik, is the biggest defence manufacturing hub with the presence of Hindustan Aeronautics Limited (HAL) and Nagpur is currently being promoted for the MRO facilities it offers. The vision of Maharashtra is to establish the state as the most favored destination for domestic Defence and Aerospace manufacturing and develop the MSME ecosystem to facilitate the same. In addition, the state has already made efforts to actively promote Research and Development in this sector, with the policy already providing fiscal and non-fiscal incentives to investors setting up R&D centers. These incentives cover both new & existing R&D institutions, testing facilities,incubation, and innovation centers. Parallel to R&D is skill development through vocational and technical training courses being provided to meet the needs of the skilled and semi-skilled manpower in the Aerospace and Defence sectors.

Leaping ahead in Pharmaceuticals and medical devices

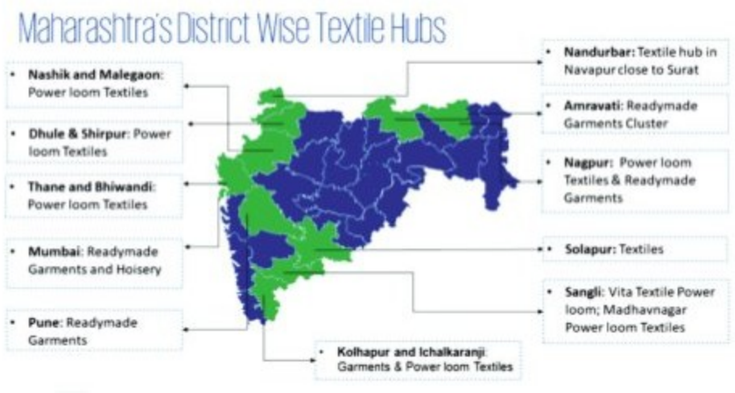
Maharashtra's contribution to the Indian Pharma Market has been substantial. As a large chunk of pharma products are manufactured and exported from the state which has been instrumental in driving the growth of pharma industry in India. Maharashtra with over 3000 pharmaceutical units, has a share of 20-25% of India's 20 billion pharmaceutical exports.

It's one of the key exporting sectors of the state and has received over 33.91% of total FDI inflows for Drugs and Pharmaceuticals between the period 2000 and 2015. The ecosystem for Pharmaceutical & Medical Devices industry in Maharashtra is conducive, primarily due to the Pharma quadrilateral amongst Mumbai, Pune, Aurangabad and Nashik.

The state is a leader in vaccine production which is evident during the ongoing pandemic where Serum Bio Pharma Park manufactured COVID19 vaccines for domestic consumption and offshore exports. The Serum Park is one of the biggest Bio-Pharma Parks in the country, located in Pune. Maharashtra has pioneered various industrial, fiscal and non-fiscal policies which generate a conducive atmosphere for growth, research and development, mass production and exports. Among all industries, the pharma industry has been a particular beneficiary of such policies and today, almost all major pharma companies in India are headquartered in Mumbai. Both Mumbai and Maharashtra are of trade and strategic interest due to a number of shipping lines such as sea ports and inland container depots located across the various parts of the state.

Lastly, R&D which forms a core part of the pharmaceutical industry is now an important priority for the state. As it is an investment heavy segment, the state has already initiated key steps in developing R&D centers, colleges and skill training institutions for further expansion of the sector.

Fiber to Fashion : Value creation in textiles



Maharashtra's District Wise Textile Hubs
Nashik and Malegaon: Power loom Textiles
Dhule & Shirpur: Power loom Textiles
Thane and Bhiwandi: Power loom Textiles
Mumbai: Readymade Garments and Hoisery

Amravati: Readymade Garments Cluster
Nagpur: Power loom Textiles & Readymade Garments
Solapur: Textiles
Sangli: Vita Textile Power loom; Madhavnagar Power loom Textiles
Kolhapur and Ichalkaranji: Garments & Power loom Textiles

A critical role is played by the textile industry towards the national economy, amounting to over 14% of India's industrial production, 4% of its GDP and 13% of its total exports. A similar role is played by the textile industry to the state's economy as it is the second largest employment generating sector after agriculture and has witnessed a sizeable increase in the ginning, spinning and weaving. This is due to the state's strong connectivity in road, rail, airports and ports, and the availability of skilled manpower, electricity, and resources.

In addition, the climatic, geographic, and demographic conditions of the state have consistently pushed the consumer and producer demand for this sector which has led to the sector's consistent growth. The textile Policy 2018-2023 is a revision to the state's textile policy 2011-17,which realized the concept of "Fiber to Fashion". The existing policy led to investments to the tune of INR 20 crore and employed 3 lakh new people, which inspired the need to revise the policy.

Fiber to Fashion : Value creation in

Mumbai and other textile clusters have been export hubs, and the increasing demand for silk, silk products, wool, cotton and non-conventional yarn has exploited the complete potential of this sector. The ongoing textile policy aims to generate 10 lakh new employments in the next 5 years and generate investments worth INR 36 crore, an ambition far bigger and inclusive than the previous policy. To meet the essential infrastructural requirements and emergency funding, the policy also provisions the creation of a Textile Development Fund for strategic use.

Additional focus points like promoting textile related Research & Development, establishing the entire textile value chain from "farming to marketing", creating a Silk tourism corridor and creating an internationally competitive textile industry in the state by focusing on processing, knitting, hosiery and garmenting sectors are also covered in the policy which makes the entire textile strategy more comprehensive and inclusive.

Coding our way into the future: Innovation hubs of Maharashtra

In the last few decades, Maharashtra has emerged to be a key hub for IT and ITeS companies, the Financial Technology sector, IT outsourcing, electronics and captive business outsourcing industries. This has happened due to the state's focus on developing and providing the appropriate IT infrastructure, incentives to IT units, and a comprehensive institutional, policy framework to the domestic and foreign IT giants. Furthermore, the consumer demand for IT and IT services has also been high in the state due to the highest share of internet users in the country, higher computer penetration rate in the country and a massive trained technical manpower providing the required support. This rate of penetration and utilization has been a process developed over the years, as it correlates with the state's high literacy rate, highest broadband & landline connections in the country and the state emerging as a financial hub.

Efforts have been made in promoting entrepreneurship and innovation by developing incubation centers to nurture entrepreneurs in the state. Alongside this, to develop emerging technologies in Maharashtra, the state aspires to partner with apex institutions to create Centers of Excellence which will work closely on emerging technologies and identify start up opportunities. Government of Maharashtra has realized the scope and potential of start ups in this industry, and their critical role to achieve steady progress. It is for this reason the state also intends to provide recruitment assistance, patent filing assistance and other fiscal and non fiscal incentives which will promote MSMEs and start ups in the sector. The massive skilled manpower and technically skilled labor which is available already can be leveraged to further develop the start up ecosystem in the state, thus generating high employment growth via this sector.

Lastly, the focus on promoting data centers and making Mumbai as a data center hub, not only for the country but also for Asia will be a dream well realized. With the advent of the Government of India's Data Protection Law, the spread of data centers has accelerated and our immediate target must be to achieve a first mover's advantage.

RERA puts up info for home buyers online

To appoint officers to inspect unregistered projects

S LALITHA @Bengaluru

HOME buyers, struggling to get justice through the Karnataka-Real Estate Regulatory Authority (K-RERA), are relieved as the body has finally become transparent, a major demand pending for years. It has also begun the process of appointing officers to conduct spot inspection of unregistered projects.

The big move taken by K-RERA last week was to display judgements delivered by its court on its website, allowing everyone to view them. It has also put up data on housing projects that were rejected, which helps people make the right decision while investing on a property.

MS Shankar, General Secretary, Forum for People's Collective Efforts -- a grouping of home buyers across the country, told TNIE, "The judgements given by the Adjudicating Officer in K-RERA for refund, compensation and interest, and decisions by K-RERA authorities on possession, amenities, refund and compensation are available for everyone to see. The Appellate Tribunal judgements too have been displayed. Earlier, only the complainant was given access to such information."

As of today, 5,124 projects have applied for registration with RERA and 4,210 have been approved, reveal data on the website. The Forum had played a key role in making K-RERA hire officers to oversee unregistered projects. In a representation to the Authority, it had said, "There are many unregistered projects in which home buyers have invested their hard-earned money and some promoters are not bothered about RERA and a few are absconding. It is necessary to take criminal action against certain promoters who have cheated thousands of homebuyers." It had urged recruiting police personnel under deputation to RERA to support them in investigations.

In a minor boost to 100 home buyers, who had filed a complaint against Mantri Serenity on Bannerghatta Road, for not honouring commitments, the K- RERA court has ruled that it was sufficient if Rs 1,000 was paid along with the petition at its court. "Earlier, the court had insisted that each individual had to pay Rs 1,000 but has now offered this relief which is a significant development," Shankar said.

BOOSTING TOURISM

Plan ready, officials await nod for ropeway in Nandi Hills

BOSKY KHANNA
@ Bengaluru

EVEN as the minister for tourism has changed, the proposal to develop Nandi Hills seems to have remained constant. The tourism department and private companies are now working on preparing the report and getting final approval to officially start work.

As per the preliminary report prepared by AarconInfra, the company that will construct the ropeway in Nandi Hills along with the state government, stated that the ropeway will be three kilometre-long and will stand at a height of 300 metre.

Former Tourism Minister C P Yogeeshwar said that meetings were held with the company and they were awarded the project as they have created ropeways across the country, including the first one in Shimla.

Brijender Lall, CEO and Managing Director of AarconInfra, told The New Indian Express that it is supposed to be an eco-friendly project, where trees will not be cut, but pruned.

"As per tentative drawings, towers for the ropeway will be erected every 150-200 metres. We have also chalked out a Rs 150 crore integrated ropeway project, which will include improvement of parking lot, creation of station for the ropeway vehicle, hotels and cafeterias. The final DPR is being prepared for a 25-30 year contract. By next month, we will also announce tenders," Lall said.

As per the Karnataka ropeway report, four places in the state- Nandi Hills, Jog Falls, Kemmanagundi and Chamundi Hills, have been selected for the project.

A tourism department official said, "After considering the ecological, financial and religious factors, Nandi Hills was chosen, because of its proximity to Bengaluru. It will be executed under a public-private partnership model. Apart from giving tourists a unique experience, tourists will also get to see how Nandi Hills looks from the top."

Officials unhappy with Jog Falls dvpt proposal

BOSKY KHANNA @ Bengaluru

DURING the last few days of his tenure, former Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa approved the proposal chalked out by the Jog Falls Management Authority and the Shivamogga district administration to attract more tourists to the destination.

According to the proposal, Rs 185 crore will be spent in three phases on a series of concrete and civil works in and around the waterfalls. The proposal, created in May 2021, and approved in July 2021, has not gone down well with many officials of the tourism department, who are also a part of the Jog Management Committee. Locals and conservationists have also strongly opposed it.

> The plan is to build a ropeway through the falls. It's a wasteful expenditure. Illuminating the falls at night has already been strongly opposed
> — Officials from forest department

In the proposal, a copy of which is available with The New Indian Express, shows the installation of a ropeway, a Sharavathi idol and creation of a main entrance, children and science museum, a main- view point, canteen and resting place, peripheral and intermittent roads, walkways, administrative department, desk stations, security guard rooms, special parking facilities, trolley rooms and trolleys, creation of quarters, boating and water sports, museum, homestays, undertaking electrical works all along the walkways and lighting works at the waterfalls.

"The plan lists out many unwanted constructions, which will concretise the whole place. It is not required. The place is already overstressed because of rampant increase in footfall. It is also shocking that only last year, the committee was planning to create a Rs 165 crore proposal, which has increased now," said a tourism department official, seeking anonymity.

Members of Karnataka Biodiversity Board have strongly voiced their opinion against taking up any more works in Shivamogga, as the region faces severe threat of landslides and ecosystem destruction.

Officials from Karnataka forest department pointed out, "Even as the committee members state that the ropeways will be in non-forest land, they are failing to recognise the fact that the other end is bound to be in forest land. The plan is to build a ropeway through the falls. It's a wasteful expenditure. Illuminating the falls at night has already been strongly opposed."

JAYADEVA INTERCHANGE FACES 6-MONTH DELAY

Work on the Jayadeva Metro Interchange has been hit by the pandemic | S LALITHA

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

THE upcoming rail-cum-road flyover at the Jayadeva Intersection has been hit hard by the pandemic. The Bangalore Metro Rail Corporation Ltd (BMRCL) has now extended its deadline by six more months from the previous deadline of December 2021.

The Jayadeva Metro Interchange Station will connect the Yellow Line from RV Road-Bommasandra (Reach-5) with the Nagavara-Kalena Agrahara Line (Reach-6). The flyover will rise to 31 metres, making it the largest such flyover in South India.

BMRCL Chief Public Relations Officer B L Yashwanth Chavan said 50 per cent of the flyover and station structure has been completed. "Tenders for finishing works in stations is in process. The structure work for the station is planned to be completed in the second quarter of 2022," he added while conceding that the pandemic has caused a delay of six months.

The crucial construction element of erecting steel girders has got delayed, said another Metro official. Asked about the delay, Chavan said, "The steel girder fabrication for road-level flyover is 80 per cent completed at the yard. Erection of this is planned to start in the next two months. Balance for R5 and R6 fabrication is in progress."

The access to the station at all four corners is a significant feature of the station, Chavan added. "It is a multi-level station consisting of underpass road, at grade road, road-flyover and two levels of Metro with access at four corners and interchange facility between Metro levels."

A source said, "Much of the workforce, runing to over 1,000 workers, has returned now. We are working 24x7 from Monday to Saturday and progress is steady now."

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

09th August: Aquarius is once again my sign of the day. We don't know when the signs of the zodiac were worked out but Aquarius appears to be among the most ancient. One good guess is that it was recognised in the Middle East and northern India about five thousand years ago. If you're an Aquarian you can afford to be a little proud!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
The Moon is already creating problems and challenges in your domestic life, but nothing you can't handle. Try to see partners' criticism as well-intentioned and glean what you can from their helpful comments. After all, there is a great deal of sense in their wise words.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
It is difficult to escape the fact that this is a period for hard work. Lazy Taureans might therefore run into problems, whereas those of you who have a highly-developed work ethic should do just fine. But you may hold certain information to yourself. You're still keeping your secrets – and why shouldn't you?

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
Every now and then the planets give you an enormous shot of energy. However, it's entirely up to you whether you use this constructively or destructively. It's important to act with maturity and self-restraint over the coming days: you'll gain respect from your friends if you do.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
Venus is in a brilliant relationship with Jupiter, one which is sure to minimise personal friction. Dreams of distant places or foreign romance may be sufficient to distract you from the rigours of family life. Yet, there's still something missing, something you're still striving for.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
It's not like a Leo to chop and change, but it does seem that events may oblige you to alter a number of deeply-held opinions. In such circumstances, flexibility can only be seen as a major virtue. If you make allowances for partners now, they'll do the same for you later on.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
As a Virgo you know better than anyone how important it is to organise your affairs and have all your dates sorted out in advance. Yet, in a week like this, the stars are likely to have different ideas, throwing all your best plans into the melting-pot.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
You frequently appear to be very self-contained and happy with your own company. However, appearances are deceptive and there does seem to be a strong likelihood that you will put yourself at someone else's mercy over the next few days. The question is, why? Only you can say!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
True, you are able to see the underlying truth of any situation better than most people, but that doesn't make it easier for you to settle disputes. Your tendency to get emotionally involved makes you a poor diplomat at the moment, so you may have to leave other people to battle it out!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
You may still feel hard done by, but you have waited too long and worked too hard not to accept an opportunity or invitation. Especially one which will lead to promotion, or increased status in your community - or to romantic bliss. You may have to take a leap into the dark.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
Professional Capricorns may have a more intense period than those of you with purely personal schemes and ambitions to pursue. Partners' generosity, or lack of it, still holds the key. You could need to wait while they make up their minds, so be patient.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
You are an impressionable person, often believing what you are told. The message of the next few days' worth of planetary aspects, is that you should believe only what you know to be right for you. Perhaps it's fine to be a little selfish for a change.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
In spite of the fact that stressful stars are raising the possibility of a conflict or two, you are in an ideal position to sidestep such personal battles and appreciate excellent possibilities for excitement and drama. You see, what at first appears to be difficult can be turned to your advantage.

New variant may emerge in Sept, Oct, says IISc

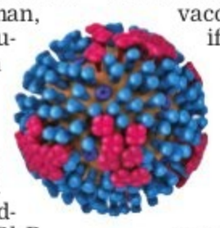
Study also predicts there may be a 12-fold increase in Covid infections in vulnerable populations, especially kids

CHETANA BELAGERE @Bengaluru

RESEARCHERS from the premier Indian Institute of Science (IISc) have developed an ensemble forecast, which is a mathematical model to predict the Covid third wave in Karnataka, by analysing 972 scenarios.

The study has predicted that the new variant could emerge by September to October, and if the present vaccination rate continues, the State Government would have to bring back all Covid restrictions. If the vaccination pace is not increased, the State could see an active case load of 7 to 8 lakhs.

"In this model, due to several uncertainties in terms of Covid spread and missing data, we have drawn several key parameters that are influencing the wave three and varied those parameters to build different scenarios," said Prof Sashikumaar Ganesan, Chairman, Department of Computational and Data Sciences.



The model was developed along with his colleague Deepak Subramani, renowned epidemiologist Dr Giridhara Babu R and PhD students.

The model is built on seven key parameters – Case-to-case infection ratio; duration of antibody waning in the population, and different scenarios if it wanes in 1/3rd, 2/3rd and full population; emergence of immune-escaped viral variants in different months starting from July-end till November; reinfection due to new variants; vaccination rates per day if it is the same and adding 50 per cent and 100 per cent increase from the current scenario; and mainly Covid-appropriate behaviour.

Keeping these seven parameters three factors were considered -- Chances of wave 3 in the State, date of the peak and agewise caseload during the peak.

"Three key parameters were observed from the seven, primary being Covid-appropriate behaviour which is most significant; the second is the timing of the new variant and third the vaccination rate," Dr Sashikumar explained.

The study found that good social distancing, no emergence of a new variant and ramped up vaccination are the key to mitigate the third wave.

"We have to be watchful for the next three to six months. Genome sequencing and testing are important. If we avoid the emergence of new variants till November, then I don't really see a peak in Karnataka. But we will definitely see a peak five to six weeks after the emergence of a new variant," he explained.

The study found that in the worst-case scenario if a new variant emerges in August, the State could see 4.51 lakh cases in August and around 20 lakh cases between August 22 and September 10.

If the vaccination remains at the same pace and a new variant emerges, the State, with relaxed social distancing norms, could see between 1.44 lakh and 2.07 lakh cases. However, if the social distancing is good, then there will only be 36,000 cases by October 13 and around 36,000 to 48,000 cases till October-end.

It predicted that there may be a 12-fold increase in Covid infections among vulnerable populations, especially children between 0 and 12 years.

POST-COVID SYNDROME: MIS-C AFFECTS MORE BOYS THAN GIRLS

RANJANI MADHAVAN @Bengaluru

OF 29 children who contracted Covid-19 and were admitted with Multisystem Inflammatory Syndrome (MIS-C) from May to July 2021 at Aster Hospitals (Aster CMI, Aster RV and Aster Whitefield), the male to female ratio was 6:1. MIS-C occurs two to six weeks after recovery from Covid-19 in children, with symptoms of inflammation, fever, multi-organ dysfunction that not only includes the skin, mucous membranes and heart, but frequently affects the gastrointestinal, respiratory and neurological systems.

"We don't know the reason for more male children developing the syndrome, as compared to females. World over as well, the findings are similar, with a ratio of 2:1. For us, the ratio was more skewed. All children presented with a history of high-grade fever and most had mucocutaneous findings in the form of red eyes, red lips and red tongue," said Dr Sagar Bhattad, Consultant - Paediatric Immunology and Rheumatology, Aster CMI Hospital.

29 CASES AT A GLANCE

- 2-15 year age group
- 6:1 male:female ratio
- 3 In Febrile Inflammatory State
- 12 with Kawasaki phenotype
- 14 kids with low BP
- 8 In hypotensive shock
- 2 needed mechanical ventilation
- 3 symptomatic treatment
- 3 IVIG only
- 23 IVIG and steroids
- 1 Tocilizumab
- 1 Anakinra
- 29 recovered
- 0 deaths

As per hospital data, gastrointestinal symptoms, including severe abdomen pain and loose stools were noted in 11 of these children. Of the 29 children, eight presented in hypotensive shock and two required mechanical ventilation.

"MIS-C is a spectrum, and 14 children had BP so low that it was unreadable (hypotensive shock). Two of them needed mechanical ventilation as breathing was difficult. Even after we administered oxygen, they continued to face issues and had to be intubated for 5 to 7 days," Dr Bhattad added.

Three children presented with a mild disease called Post-Covid Febrile Inflammatory State (FIS). This included high fever and increased inflammation, but they were stable and recovered with symptomatic treatment.

One child with severe MIS-C developed Macrophage Activation Syndrome wherein there is reduced haemoglobin, platelet and White Blood Cell count. This is the severest form of MIS-C, with a high death rate. This patient was treated with additional biological therapy, using Anakinra and Tocilizumab, and recovered. Intravenous immunoglobulin and steroids were used in the treatment of 93% of the cases. There were no deaths, and all have recovered.

Dr Bhattad advised the public to remain watchful for two to three months after a child recovers from Covid.

The hospital also saw three more paediatric cases in the past 10 days, where two patients needed ICU. With increased awareness, multi-disciplinary support and improved understanding of this new disease, early diagnosis and treatment of children with MIS-C is now possible, the hospital said.

Travellers stranded at Kerala, TN borders

Mysuru: Hundreds of travellers were stranded at the Karnataka-Tamil Nadu and Karnataka-Kerala border checkposts, which were blocked for two days, following weekend curfew in the border districts of Mysuru, Chamrajanagar and Kodagu. Many who started their journey with RT-PCR negative reports from Kerala to enter Karnataka, were stopped at the checkposts. Many of them argued with the staff, and remained seated in their vehicles, and students waited on their bikes. Compounding this was rain. The situation was the same in Bavalli, Moolehole and Chakkanahalla bordering Kerala, Palar and Punjanoor bordering Tamil Nadu. Traffic on the busy Mysuru-Bengaluru road was thin. ENS

Cause for worry as DK positivity rate crosses 5%

BENGALURU: While all districts in Karnataka have recorded a positivity rate of less than 5%, and gone into unlock phase, Dakshina Kannada district is once again reporting an average positivity rate of 5.22% in the past seven days. On Sunday, Dakshina Kannada district reported 438 cases, exceeding Bengaluru Urban with 348 cases. While Karnataka's positivity rate in the past seven days has been 1.32%, Dakshina Kannada topped with 5.22%, followed by Kodagu at 3.95%, Udupi at 3.82%, Chikkamagaluru at 3.72%, and Bengaluru Urban at 0.80%. On Sunday, Karnataka reported 1,598 cases, lower than the numbers reported in the past six days. Karnataka reported 20 deaths on Sunday, the second lowest number of deaths in a single day, the first being 9 deaths on July 28. ENS

BOMMAI, YEDIYURAPPA DISCUSS DISCONTENT AMONG MLAs

BSY tells chief minister to focus on administration, says he will take care of legislators

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Sunday afternoon paid a surprise visit to Kaveri, the residence of former Chief Minister BS Yediyurappa, and spent about 25-30 minutes with him in a closed-door meeting, without assistants.

Sources said that Bommai had spoken to Yediyurappa about the discontent brewing within the ministry and party. Yediyurappa is said to have told Bommai that he would help him deal with the unhappy legislators, and that he, as Chief Minister, needs to focus on administration, with the twin challenges of Covid and floods looming large.

Those who are unhappy with their ministries have made no bones about it, especially Anand Singh, MTB Nagaraj, V Somanna and Shashikala Jolle. It may be recalled that just days after the new ministers were appointed and portfolios announced, the number of disgruntled legislators has increased.

It may be recalled that legislators who failed to make it to the cabinet had gathered at the residence of former minister Ramesh Jarkiholi on Friday evening, and when he left by road for Belagavi, there were many more who were waiting to meet him in his home town on Saturday. This is in addition to those legislators who quit the Congress-JDS to join the BJP, like Srimanth Patil, Mahesh Kumatahalli and Prathapgouda Patil.

Ramesh, who resigned following the CD row, bargained hard to get his brother Balachandra Jarkiholi into the cabinet, but was unable to do so. He himself expects to join the cabinet after cases against him are cleared.

The list of disgruntled legislators is long: Honalli MLA MP Renukacharya, Haveri MLA Nehru Olekar, Shorapur MLA Raju Gowda and others. Olekar has said that those who were denied a cabinet berth will come together and take a decision on their next step.

A group of disgruntled legislators which was working to discredit Yediyurappa -- MLAs Basanagouda Yatnal and Arvind Bellad, MLCs CP Yogeeshwara and Adagur Vishwanath -- have been in touch with the unhappy ministers.

Pratap Gouda Patil, who lost the assembly elections on a BJP ticket, told TNIE that he had met CM Bommai on Saturday, along with Balchandra Jarkiholi, Srimanth Patil and Mahesh Kumatahalli. He said he lost his assembly seat and the BJP has not recognised him, suggesting that certain people in the party had conspired to defeat him. He is asking to be suitably rehabilitated. As Arvind Bellad told TNIE, "Everyone cannot be satisfied 100 per cent."

Meanwhile, Hassan MLA Preetham Gowda appears none too happy that CM Bommai had met Deve Gowda. Gowda had also met senior BJP leaders Nitin Gadkari, Piyush Goyal and other BJP leaders. The JDS has already expressed support for the BJP, and is willing to help form the government if any of the unhappy BJP MLAs plan to leave. While dissidents do understand that the JDS has already tied up with BJP in the Upper House, it is are not willing to join the government. Party sources also warned that elections are due in just 20 months, and the MLAs should not indulge in any drama to embarrass the party.

BJP general secretary Ravi Kumar told TNIE, "Even my name was taken as a ministerial probable, but everyone cannot be accommodated at one time, we have to wait for our turn."

Party leaders have, by and large, managed to douse discontent threatening to engulf the party, but it remains to be seen if they can instil the famed party discipline, and prevent the situation from getting worse.

BSY declines Cabinet-rank facilities

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

LESS than 24 hours after former chief minister BS Yediyurappa was given Cabinet-rank facilities by the State Government, the Shikaripura MLA wrote to Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai urging him to withdraw the same.

The Cabinet-rank status would give Yediyurappa a chance to retain various facilities like the official bungalow, car, travel allowance, among other perks. "I request you to withdraw the order giving me a cabinet rank," Yediyurappa wrote in the letter to Bommai.

Meanwhile, Congress spokesman and former MLC Ramesh Babu said, "According Cabinet status to a former chief minister by a present chief minister doesn't set a right precedent."

An order issued on Saturday by the Under Secretary, Department of Personnel and Administrative Reforms (DPAR), protocol wing, had stated that as long as the current chief minister holds the post, his predecessor will enjoy all facilities of a Cabinet rank minister. This decision of the government came on a day when the portfolios were allocated to the 29 new ministers of the Bommai cabinet who took oath recently.

INTERVIEW

Tackling drug menace tops my priority list, says new Home Minister

It is a challenging task to manage the ministry efficiently. But handling challenges, in my political career and personal life, has become a habit. I like challenges....

As Home Minister of Karnataka, I expect my department personnel to behave modestly with people and help in building a better police-public relationship

Araga Jnanendra, Karnataka Home Minister

RAMACHANDRA V GUNARI
@ Shivamogga

THERE were quite a few surprises when Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai allocated ministries on Saturday. One was senior BJP leader and four-time MLA of Thirthahalli Assembly constituency, Araga Jnanendra getting the all-important Home Department, despite him being the first-time minister.

Jnanendra said he had no expectations and was confident of handling the portfolio. He said it is a sensitive department and maintaining law and order is his first priority. He spoke to The New Indian Express on various issues and his priorities. Excerpts from an interview:

This is the first time you have been made a minister and you have got the home portfolio. How will you handle your responsibilities?
It is a challenging task to manage the ministry efficiently. But handling challenges, in my political career and personal life, has become a habit. I like challenges and I have the confidence to manage this sensitive and responsible portfolio with courage. I was a bit hesitant after the portfolio allocation and it surprised me too. I called up the chief minister and he told me that I am capable of handling the portfolio and that he and former chief minister BS Yediyurappa will guide me. He asked me not to worry. Those inspiring words made me confident.

While handling the home ministry earlier, Bommai focused on curbing the drug menace. What are your priorities?
The drug menace is one of the major problems and it is on top of my priority list. The government will not spare any anti-national or anti-social elements who try to disturb peace in the State.

Recently, African nationals protested in Bengaluru after a Congolese man died in police custody. It was later learnt that many of them are staying in the country without proper documents. How do you plan to tackle this issue?
Their illegal stay is a big offence and we will take strict action against them. Many of them are also allegedly involved in drug peddling. Whether one is an Indian or a foreign national, no illegal activity will be tolerated. I will hold a meeting with police officials to discuss the issue and take action as per law.

Are you planning to introduce reforms to make the police force more people-friendly?
As Home Minister I expect my department personnel to behave modestly with people and help in building a better police-public relationship.

How are you planning to improve the efficiency of the police department?
My motto is: Punish the miscreants and protect the innocent. The department is following these principles, but some issues have cropped up. I will instruct officials to strictly adhere to them.

Will simplify teacher transfer process: Nagesh

"I WILL give these issues more time, read, think and gather enough information before taking a decision," minister Nagesh said.

On the annual transfer of teachers, he said, "When big organisations, such as State Bank of India, LIC and Indian Railways, can effect transfers at ease, why cannot we? We have made it a big problem and it will be simplified."

On recruitment of teachers, he said the priority will be primary and high schools as there is a shortage of teachers, especially in English, science and mathematics.

The minister said that he wants quality education to reach children, irrespective of the medium of instruction, and hinted at opening more Karnataka Public Schools.

Siddaramaiah wants govt to withdraw NEP, demands detailed discussion

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

LASHING out at the State Government for hurriedly implementing the National Education Policy (NEP)-2020 without consultation at the state level, Congress Legislature Party Chief Siddaramaiah has urged the government to withdraw its order immediately.

The former chief minister said that the BJP-led State Government was being dictatorial in its approach to the matter and called its move an insult to the federal structure of the union of states."The State Government is rushing to implement this policy with no consultation or discussions on how it impacts students of Karnataka. Neither teachers, professors, education policy experts, and Opposition leaders have been approached to hold discussions," Siddarmaiah said. He pointed out to the concerns he has noticed in the new education policy that Higher Education Minister Dr CN Ashwath Narayan announced as implemented on Saturday.

"The draft policy says that Kannada will be taught only for two semesters. After severe protests in the state, Ashwath Narayana had said that issue will be resolved... but Saturday's order makes no mention of the solution. The NEP allows a student to get enough credits online thus eliminating the need for them to attend physical classes. This in effect has reduced universities to distance education course institutions. The policy will end up consuming government universities and make way for private universities to run amok. This decision has been included by the government only to give private universities a free hand while reducing government universities into certificate selling shops," Siddaramaiah charged.

He added that teaching and syllabus are a state subject and with NEP, the Union Government is attempting to undermine the state's authority.

On Saturday, the government issued an order implementing NEP-2020 from the current academic year. "With this, Karnataka becomes the first state in the country to issue the order on implementation of NEP-2020," Dr Ashwath Narayan had said.

MOMENT OF PRIDE

The Sirsi force behind the Golden Boy's 87.58-m throw

AMIT S UPADHYE @ Hubballi

WHEN Neeraj Chopra scripted history by becoming the first Indian track and field athlete to win gold in javelin at the Tokyo 2020 Olympic Games on Saturday, Kashinath Naik--- one of his formative year coaches--- was all over the moon.

A native of Sirsi, Naik Subedar Kashinath Naik trained the Golden Boy at the Netaji Subhash National Institute of Sports in Patiala between 2015 and 2017.

"I was so excited that I could not sleep the entire night," Naik, a bronze medalist in javelin at the 2010 Delhi Commonwealth Games, told TNIE after Neeraj got India its first and only gold at the Tokyo Olympic Games after throwing a distance of 87.58m in his second attempt in the men's javelin throw. Currently, Naik serves at the Army Sports Institute in Pune.

"I am so happy. Neeraj has been associated with me for more than five years now. I was instrumental in him joining the Army as a sportsperson. He changed several coaches after he left Netaji Subhash National Institute of Sports in Patiala. Also, Neeraj was in touch with me during his training, his injury and recovery period," a beaming Naik said.

Naik said he passed on the weak points of Neeraj to his successive coaches. "Sometimes, when you try to force yourself for better results, you might fail. On Saturday, we saw a couple of fouls by Neeraj. In an attempt to throw further, one might mess with the rules of the sport. Hence, technique becomes the most important aspect of javelin and Neeraj has mastered it," he said.

Naik started to coach budding javelin throwers in 2012 and in 2013, became the Indian national coach. He continued to hold the post till 2018 after which he has been coaching military sportsmen.

He joined the Army soon after the Kargil operation in 1999. He recognised the talent in Neeraj wayback in 2016 when the Olympian was just 18. "Neeraj has a great future... It is a moment of pride for every Indian. The medal will give a big boost to athletics in India," Naik added.

Karnataka govt announces ₹10L reward for Naik

The State Government announced a reward of Rs 10 lakh to Naik. "An achiever himself, Kashinath trained Chopra to win the gold and make the nation proud. In view of his achievement, the government announces the cash reward of Rs 10 lakh for the coach," Sports and Youth Empowerment Minister K C Narayanagowda said. Reacting to the honour, Naik told TNIE that he was very thankful to CM Basavaraj Bommai and the Karnataka Sports Minister. "As a coach, many of my students have won medals in several events, including Asian Games. But this is the first time that I am receiving such kind of recognition. My request is that whenever governments gives an award to an athlete, they should consider their coaches too... it will motivate the coaches," he added.

Neeraj was part of Ballari dist police awareness programme

SUBHASH CHANDRA N S @Ballari

OLYMPIC gold medalist Neeraj Chopra has a Ballari connection as he was sponsored by JSW Steel Ltd, which has started an international standard sports facility – Inspire Institute of Sports (IIS) -- on its premises at Toranagallu.

Neeraj, who trained here, had developed a good rapport with the local police by participating in several of their initiatives. A JSW official said, "We sponsored him and he came here often to train. His longest stay was in 2019 for his rehabilitation after being injured and undergoing a surgery of his right elbow. He was operated in Mumbai by surgeon Dr Dinshaw Pardiwala and he was rehabilitated here, where a team of physiotherapists headed by Dhanraj Kaushik took care of him."

Neeraj came to Ballari frequently since 2016 and participated in activities organised by the police. "We have a programme to create awareness among people to give way for ambulances and save lives. Chopra was part of that initiative," said Kudithini Sub-Inspector Mohammed Rafi. SP Saidulu Adavath said, "It was a good gesture by him to become a part of our awareness programme. Ballari police are happy to be associated with Neeraj, who has made our country proud."

NIA raids house of suspect who gave fake documents to Bangladeshi immigrants

BALA CHAUHAN @Bengaluru

THE National Investigation Agency (NIA) on Saturday conducted searches at two locations in the city, on the premises of one Rafik Ali, who is allegedly involved in making fake ID proof documents for Bangladeshi traffickers and trafficked victims.

During the searches, the agency seized "various incriminating documents, six digital devices including hard disks and mobile phones used for making the forged documents," the NIA stated. A 22-year-old Bangladeshi woman was gangraped in Ramamurthy Nagar police station limits in May this year by her compatriots. The city police had registered a suo motu case after a video of the assault went viral.

The police had arrested and charge-sheeted 12 accused in the case, of whom 11 are from Bangladesh. The rape survivor, narrating her travails to the police, had reportedly revealed that she was trafficked at the age of 16 to Dubai and had come to India early this year.

The investigation into the case has unravelled an organised international human trafficking network in which many Indians are also involved.

"They provide the illegal immigrants with fake domicile documents that pass them off as natives of West Bengal," said an informed source.

Women were trafficked from Bangladesh by accused persons on the pretext of providing jobs in India, but were forced into flesh trade, the NIA stated.

The case was originally registered as FIR -0185/2021 dated June 8 at the Ramamurthy Nagar police station against 13 accused relating to a raid conducted by Bengaluru police at a rented house where seven Bangladeshi women and one child were rescued from the custody of human traffickers.

The NIA on July 13 had re-registered the case as RC-16/2021/NIA/DLI under Sections 370, 343 of the Indian Penal Code (IPC) for human trafficking and wrongful confinement, 14 of the Foreigners Act, 1946 and 3, 4, 5, 6 & 7 of the Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act, 1956.

KERALA TOURIST SPOTS, BEACHES UNLOCK, WELCOME THE VAXXED

Forest dept also decides to unlock all eco-tourism destinations today even as cases rise

DHINESH KALLUNGAL @T'Puram

TOURIST destinations across the state will be opened for visitors from Monday, bringing cheers to the hospitality sector ahead of Onam.

As part of revising the lockdown restrictions, the state government announced that all tourist spots in open spaces, including beaches, will be accessible to domestic visitors from Mondays to Saturdays. The forest department has also decided to open all eco-tourism spots from Monday in the light of the government fixing new guidelines for people going out.

A senior tourism department officer said all tourism destinations will now be accessible to visitors. "If any particular area is declared containment zone, the respective district collector can order closure of the destination. With the new directive, the eco-tourism destinations functioning under various forest development agencies -- like other tourist spots -- which were deserted in the wake of the Covid second wave, will be teeming with holidayers by Onam," the officer told TNIE.

In the absence of foreign visitors, the department is hoping to cash in on the domestic tourism potential. "Those who have taken at least one dose of vaccine before two weeks can now access the tourist spots adhering to Covid protocol. The sector has already sustained a loss of ₹33,000 crore from March to December 2020 and the loss in forex is estimated at ₹7,000 crore," said Tourism Minister P A Mohamed Riyas. He said the tourism department is planning to bring out an app linking the unexplored destinations across the state to provide details of the spots to tourists.

Soon after the Covid cases started decreasing in other parts of the country, the homestays and hotels across the state have been receiving queries from various places regarding opening of the tourist destinations.

"The hospitality sector is ready to follow all guidelines suggested by the state government to open the sector. Next, the state government should convince other states about the real situation in Kerala," he said.

Telangana to skip Godavari, Krishna river boards panel meet again

R PRIDHVI RAJ @ Hyderabad

IN less than a week, the Telangana government, for the second time, will skip the joint coordination committee meeting of the Godavari and Krishna River Management Boards scheduled to be held on Monday.

In separate letters to the two boards on Sunday, Special Chief Secretary, Irrigation, Rajat Kumar, while stating that the Telangana officials would not attend the meeting, recalled that the government had already expressed its inability to attend the meeting in a communication on August 3 because of its prior commitments to various "legal and court matters." Rajat Kumr also requested the chairpersons of the two boards to indicate another convenient date so that Telangana could attend the meeting.

The coordination committee held its first meeting on August 3 but Telangana gave it a miss, arguing that it would be in the fitness of things if the full board meetings of KRMB and GRMP are held to discuss sharing of waters between the two states before discussing pressure points in the gazette notification issued by the Jal Shakti Ministry, which brought all the 107 projects on both the rivers under the operational control of the two boards.

Five arrested for attack on KAMS secy

Police said the prime accused, who is still absconding, had planned to murder Kumar so that he can replace him and extort money from private schools. The arrested have been identified as Dilip, Abhi alias Abhishek, Karthik alias Patel, Bharath and Pawan. Prime accused Ravi A alias RTI Ravi claims to be an RTI activist and was president of Karnataka Students' Parents' Association.

Shashi Kumar had escaped with injuries in the attack on July 9 night, when three-four men attacked him with weapons when he got out of his car outside his house in Muthyala Nagar. He had sustained injuries in his hands and leg, but escaped by getting inside his car.

The assailants had escaped after he took out his licensed pistol and opened a warning shot in the air. "It was a planned attack. Ravi had rented a house close to the Shashi Kumar's house, where the assailants had been staying for the last six months to watch his movements. The house was raided and a pistol, three live rounds and other weapons were recovered. Of the five arrested, three were involved in murder cases and one in an attempt to murder case. They had gone to jail and were released on bail," the police said.

3 held for extortion, impersonation

Bengaluru: Thalaghatta pura police have arrested three men for allegedly impersonating policemen and extorting people. Shivakumar alias Dadiya Shiva, Praveen Kumar and Raghu M were arrested in a vehicle theft case. Their interrogation led the police to crack three other cases. "The accused admitted to extorting one, Mahesh, by posing as policemen in Ramanagar Rural police station limits. They had shown a photocopy of an ID card of a home guard and a handcuff and had asked for money. The victim had given them ₹10,000, but the accused took him in a car to ATM kiosks and forced him to withdraw ₹80,000. Then they took him to his friend's house where they made him borrow ₹1 lakh," the police said. The trio, who had a criminal background, also used to target couples on highways on the outskirts of the city and extort them claiming to be policemen. The police have recovered four gold chains worth ₹3.10 lakh, cash of ₹1.50 lakh, a car, a knife, a handcuff and other articles from the accused. ENS

Drunk DJ arrested for mowing down riders

The deceased are Ketharam P (40) and Keemaram N (29), both carpenters from Rajasthan. Police said Suhas was driving the car recklessly and rammed the bike before crashing into the footpath. Anil R (29), a resident of Rajagopalnagar, was involved in several cases, including robbery and chain-snatching. A senior police officer said that that at 7.40 pm, Anil snatched the gold chain from the woman and ran towards his two-wheeler parked near a hotel. She raised an alarm and the Hoysala team caught him before he could start his bike, and recovered the chain. Hearing the alarm, passers by had also blocked the road. # Neglect, oppression deprive tribals of housing rights

OMJASVIN MD @Chennai

"FOR about five years, we've been appealing to the district authorities to give us housing. But people of the dominant caste in our village, with the help of local politicians, stop the officials from giving us houses here," says Nandini, a woman from the Narikuravar tribal community, which traditionally makes ornaments of beads for a living.

About 50 Narikuravar families live in Karasangal village in Kancheepuram district, hardly 10 km from the suburbs of Chennai. These tribals, who stay just outside the Karasangal TNEB office, have been fighting for housing rights for years.

Having migrated from various parts of Kancheepuram about 20 years ago, these tribals settled alongside the busy Karasangal-Manimangalam-Sriperambudur High Road, which reaches interior parts of Kancheepuram. While their hamlet grew into a bigger settlement over time as they built makeshift houses with bricks and straw, they lack basic amenities such as drinking water, toilets and electricity. Some of them don't even have basic documentation such as Aadhaar cards, voter ID and ration cards.

Making matters worse, they face oppression from people of the dominant caste in the village, who constitute 80 per cent of the population, according to the tribals. "Through activists, we have made representations to district officials at various levels, seeking better housing within the locality. The Revenue authorities even surveyed land for us near the village and promised to give us housing. But people of the dominant caste want us out of here," complains Amula, who is in his 30s.

Families of Narikuravar tribals suffer from lack of basic amenities | ASHWIN PRASATH

When TNIE visited the village on Sunday and was interacting with the tribals, several men, appearing to be from dominant castes, passed through the hamlet, hurling casteist slurs and challenging the tribals to get housing in the village. They even demanded that the tribals vacate the region. About 10 minutes later, few local politicians, who also appeared to be from the dominant communities, tried to stop the tribals from speaking about their oppression.

GOOD RIDDANCE OF RETROSPECTIVE TAX OF THE UPA ERA

If it weren't for the threats from Cairn Energy to seize Indian assets abroad, including the assets of national carrier Air India in the US, and multiple legal setbacks at international arbitration tribunals, the Centre's latest move to repeal the UPA-era retrospective tax on capital gains from indirect transfer of Indian assets would have been called another Modi masterstroke. But given the suddenness and the hush-hush way (no one in the government seems to have claimed credit for it) the Centre brought in the Bill, it looks like it had few options to save itself from further embarrassment.

Whatever may be the reason, it is a wise move to rectify a longstanding policy mistake. It will repair some damage to India's image among global investors and reinstate it as a credible investment destination. That it was a legacy of the UPA regime—which in knee-jerk fashion passed the infamous 2012 amendment—does not exonerate the present government from continuing with a policy patently bad in law. It must be remembered that it was the current government that had in 2016 frozen Cairn India's dividend payout in order to recover the tax dues, and barred Cairn Energy from selling its 10% residual stake. Besides, it kept harping on the point that tax is a sovereign right not to be decided by bilateral treaty rules, despite multiple unfavourable judgments at international tribunals.

Though late in the day, the decision to scrap the retro tax does seem to be well-timed. It has come when Vodafone Idea, buffeted by an I-T department demand of $2.1 billion, is facing an existential crisis due to shortage of cash. For the company, the decision has come not a day too soon. Besides, the government is facing the uphill task of repairing a Covid-ravaged economy, and it needs foreign investors' support to revive it. The Centre has put some conditions. The companies are required to give up on damages and other claims as well cease and withdraw arbitration and other legal disputes. Given the circumstances, it would be wiser for the affected parties like Cairn Energy to choose the middle path and settle with the government amicably.

WHAT NEERAJ MOMENT MEANS TO ATHLETICS

The diameter of the gold medal Neeraj Chopra received is 85 mm, its weight is 556 grams. Its weight to India, though, will be immeasurable. You will have heard stories about its significance—the country's first gold ever in athletics in Olympic history—but it's still worth talking about. With swimming and gymnastics being the other two, athletics is considered one of the gold standard events of the Olympic programme. India has won Olympic gold before in hockey and shooting. But never in one of the three glamour disciplines. What Neeraj essentially did on Saturday is to change this.

Until Saturday afternoon, it was a dream. When he hurled the spear to a distance of 87.58 m, it quite literally gave wings to the idea of a future where India could aspire to win multiple athletic medals. It also literally punched a hole in the idea of India not being capable in the field of athletics. Sure, one medal today may not mean much, but one must consider the bigger picture. For a winning culture to emerge, there has to be a pathbreaker. The 23-year-old's generation-defining effort could be just that. Even if cricket was always popular, the 1983 World Cup and the 1985 win in Australia heralded a new dawn. Shooting received a shot in the arm after the 2002 Manchester Commonwealth Games and 2004 Olympic silver. Saina Nehwal's badminton bronze in 2012 inspired a generation of kids to take up the sport. Likewise in wrestling and boxing after the medals in the 2008 Beijing Olympics.

Neeraj's watershed moment could have the same effect. It all depends on how the legacy would be moved forward. For once, his success is not just his personal brilliance but also a reflection of a system that had managed to work together. The Athletics Federation of India, Sports Authority of India and JSW Sports' contributions cannot be disregarded. Scientific training was provided along with a personal coach. Talent scouting in athletics is just the first step. Creating the right conditions and environment in pursuit of glory is an entirely different thing. If India manages to increase this tally of one in Paris in 2024 or Los Angeles in 2028, there will be a silent nod to 7 August 2021.

What caused differences between the nations was basic disagreement about the role of major powers. The current upswing began with the ascendancy of Goh Chok Tong

UPS AND DOWNS IN INDIA-SINGAPORE RELATIONS

V SURYANARAYAN
Senior Professor (Retd.), Centre for South and Southeast Asian Studies, University of Madras

AMIT BANDRE

When Singapore was part of Malaysia (16 September 1963 – 8 August 1965), it made the recital of the song, Malaysia for Ever, compulsory in all schools. "Let's get together, sing a happy song, Malaysia forever, 10 million strong, land of the free, marching as one." When Singapore became a separate state on 9 August 1965, the students made a small change: instead of 10 million strong, they sang 10 minutes long.

From 1954, when the People's Action Party (PAP) was formed, Lee Kuan Yew maintained that Singapore was not, could not and did not want to be a nation and its destiny was intertwined with Malaya. The first essay of Singapore's independence was in the context of Malaysia, but when Singapore, not without reason, was separated, its leaders had to make a sudden volte-face and proclaim "we are a nation and we would continue to be a nation".

Within three hours of the independence proclamation, Lee summoned Thomas Abraham (then Commissioner of India) and requested him that India should assist in the building up of its armed forces. Had Lee's request been accepted, the first Chiefs of the Army, Navy and Air Force would have been Indians. New Delhi was lukewarm and Lee turned to Israel for help.

New Delhi's reluctance could be explained in the context of separation. The main reason for the failure of the new federation was Lee's impatience to come to power in Malaysia. As relations began to get strained, Lee challenged the very basis of Malaysia, where Malays had special rights and privileges and political power vested in their hands. His utter disregard of the United Malays National Organisation (UMNO) led to racial riots in July and September 1964. Lee and his advisers, especially journalist Alex Josey (popularly known as Rasputin), criticised the policies of the inter-communal Alliance, which was in power since 1955; carried on a mischievous campaign in England, Australia and New Zealand against Malay leaders, including Tunku Abdul Rahman; hinted at alternate arrangements (Singapore with Penang and Malacca); and finally questioned that Malays could not claim to be bumiputras (indigenous people). Communal tensions rose high, Lee's political brinkmanship failed and Tunku Abdul Rahman decided to separate Singapore from Malaysia. Lee met his Canossa on August 7. He was faced with a fait accompli; his desperate plea for loose arrangements was turned down; the British High Commissioner could not help his protégé and what is more, Tunku insisted that the separation agreement must be signed by all members of the Singapore cabinet. Thus Lee became the first "reluctant" prime minister of independent Singapore.

India-Singapore relations had undergone many twists and turns. Sunanda Datta-Ray has summed it up: "The journey from the sunlit peaks of hope into valleys of deep despair and now, towards the radiance of a new dawn." The first phase could be termed as "missed opportunities". Within a few days of independence, the India-Pakistan war in 1965 took place. Singapore was the first country to extend spontaneous support to India. When Singapore Airlines started, it wanted to have technical cooperation with Air India, but New Delhi did not respond. When the British decided to withdraw from their bases, Lee visited New Delhi and requested Indira Gandhi to utilise the facilities for shipbuilding and ship repair. She ignored the suggestion.

The second phase began when triangular relations among Moscow, Beijing and Hanoi began to deteriorate. ASEAN, in general, and Singapore in particular, began to criticise New Delhi as the "surrogate of Soviet Union". ASEAN made common cause with Beijing and the US, provided legitimacy to the Pol Pot regime, and rallied behind Thailand, the "frontline state". From Hanoi's point of view, Pol Pot by himself was only a nuisance, but Pol Pot backed by China was a threat to Vietnam's security. It, therefore, militarily intervened in Cambodia in December 1978 and put its puppet Heng Samrin in power. New Delhi viewed the developments from a different perspective. Given deep anti-China sentiments throughout Vietnamese history, India considered Hanoi to be the bulwark against Chinese expansionism. As K R Narayanan succinctly summarised: "While driving the wolf (US) from the front door and warding off the tiger (Soviet Union) through the back door, ASEAN should not allow the dragon to step in or force its way through the side door." Narayanan's warning has come true, the dragon today is the pre-eminent power in the region.

> Had Lee Kuan Yew's request within hours of independence been accepted by our nation, Singapore's first Chiefs of the Army, Navy and Air Force would have been Indians. New Delhi was reluctant, for a reason

During the 1970s, I used to argue that China was one country that had used force to buttress its territorial claims—against India in 1962, against the Soviet Union in 1968 and Vietnam in 1979. There was much appreciation for my point of view, but today all Southeast Asian countries have joined the Belt and Road initiative. China has embraced a hybrid system of capitalism, it has integrated into the world economy and the CCP is firing all shots. But with increasing strains in the US-China relations, questions are being asked as to how countries like Singapore would respond as they are located at the intersection of major powers.

What caused Singapore-India differences was basic disagreement about the role of major powers. Lee pleaded for intensification of the American bombing of Vietnam to compel Hanoi to come to the negotiating table. It was music to the ears of American hawks like Henry Kissinger. But behind the exhortation was the plain truth that war would give a boost to Singapore's economy. A nation of shopkeepers, Singapore is prepared to sacrifice principles for money. Two illustrations are in order. Tunku Abdul Rahman was spearheading the campaign for the expulsion of South Africa from the Commonwealth. To his embarrassment, he found that Singapore, then a part of Malaysia, was carrying on trade with the apartheid regime. Tunku immediately put an end to the trade. Lee was very unhappy, but could not do anything. Second, despite the most hawkish statements against Hanoi, Singapore carried on prosperous trade with Vietnam.

The current phase began with the ascendancy of Prime Minister Goh Chok Tong. He created a mild "India fever" in Singapore and pushed New Delhi's case as a dialogue partner in ASEAN, much to China's chagrin. Defence relations have been expanded and the Singapore Air Force is getting training in Barrackpore Air Base. Trade and investment are forging ahead. Singapore has also played a commendable role in the setting up of Nalanda University

It must be underlined that Singapore has surplus capital and entrepreneurial skill. What is more, it wants to diversify investments. All parts of India, especially Tamil Nadu, could gain if we modernise our infrastructure, develop skilled manpower and create a congenial atmosphere for foreign direct investment.

The political systems in the two countries are very different. Any attempt to replicate the Singapore model in India would be disastrous. It is worth narrating what took place in the famous lecture that Narasimha Rao gave in October 1994. Lee presided and, in a magnanimous gesture, compared Rao with Deng Xiaoping. There was a question-answer session. There was a remark, obviously planted: "What India requires is not democracy, but discipline." Rao paused for 10 seconds. Then he said, "The antidote for the evils of democracy is not less democracy, but more democracy." There was thunderous applause, in which many members of the Singapore cabinet joined. The only person, who was found profusely sweating, was Lee.

SHIVALINGA: MOVEMENT OF FORMLESS TO FORM

SAURABH SAXENA
Founder of Puratattva, a documentation of heritage sites

The pious month of Sravana is dedicated to Lord Shiva. Devotees visit Shiva temples to get darshan of the God, offer milk, water and bilva leaves, and observe a fast on the four Mondays of the month. Acquiring the knowledge of the Supreme is the goal of a devotee.. The Supreme is manifested as God through a threefold manifestation. The first stage is nishkala (formless) where the Supreme is conceived in space. The second stage is when nishkala evolves into a partial form or a symbol. The third and the final stage is the complete transformation into a full iconic form. In Shaiva iconography, the first manifestation is known as Para-Shiva, the second as Sadashiva and the third as Mahesha.

While a Shivalinga represents the Para-Shiva, a Mukhalinga (with one or multiple faces) represents the Sadashiva. In a Mukhalinga, the God reveals himself partially with his head projecting out. The agamas mention five heads of Sadashiva as Vamadeva, Sadyojata, Aghora, Tatpurusha and Ishana. They represent five elements, directions and colours. Vamadeva faces north, represents jal (water) and is of red colour. This is carved with a feminine aspect reflecting Uma, thus also called Umavaktra. Sadyojata faces west, represents prithvi (earth) and is of the pearl-like colour of the full moon. This is also known as Nandivaktra as it represents Nandi. Aghora faces south, represents agni (fire) and is of dark blue colour. This shows the ferocious character of the deity. Tatpurusha faces east, represents vayu (wind) and is of golden yellow colour. It reflects the Mahadeva form of Shiva. Ishana faces the sky, representing akasha (sky) and is of crystal-white colour. This head is told to be beyond the ken even to yogis.

The earliest Mukhalinga is an inscribed panchamukha linga from Bhita (Prayagraj), now in the State Museum, Lucknow (2nd century BCE). Another unique linga from the same period is in the Parasurameswara Temple at Gudimallam (Andhra). The Gudimallam linga, in worship even now, has an image of a male figure carved over its shaft. This male figure, in the appearance of a hunter, represents Shiva, shown holding an axe and a ram and standing over a dwarf demon.

The iconography of Mukhalingas started taking shape during the Kushan period in northwest India and was soon crystalised during the Gupta period as we find many Mukhalingas installed in temples and shrines. While many Gupta-period Shivalingas are now adorning various museums and collections, two magnificent Shivalingas are still in their original shrines, one at the Udayagiri Cave and another in the Shiva Temple at Bhumara, both in Madhya Pradesh.

The Udayagiri caves near Vidisha (MP) are famous for some of the earliest Hindu iconographic representations. These caves were excavated during the reign of the Gupta king Chandragupta II (380-415 CE). Cave number 4 has an ekamukha linga enshrined inside. The face is round with the hair tied above in a knot and falling on the sides, making a frame around the face. Shiva's third eye is placed vertically between his eyebrows. He is shown sporting a smile with his eyes half-closed. As the Mukhalinga faces east, it may represent the Tatpurusha aspect of Sadashiva.

The iconography advanced with time, resulting in new dimensions and transformations. The Chaumukhnath Temple, Nachna in Panna district (MP) is famous for its Chaturmukha linga (8th century CE). Inside the temple is a 5-ft-high linga with four faces carved on its shaft, which represent the Tatpurusha, Aghora, Vamadeva and Sadyojata aspects of Sadashiva. The aspect of Ishana is conceived as a notional fifth head assumed over the top of the Shivalinga. The face of Aghora is very elaborately carved, reflecting this terrific aspect with an open mouth, contracted brows and protruding teeth. Placing flowers, incense, and other offerings in the open mount of the Aghora face is a general practice of the devotees in the temple.

Lord Shiva manifests in his various forms to his devotees and each devotee approaches Him with what is convenient. Let the Lord have his grace on each devotee with all his blessings in this auspicious month and always.

Cong leaders dare Twitter to block accounts

Target Centre on the murder of a nine-year-old girl saying nothing can stop them from ensuring justice to the family

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

A day after Congress leader Rahul Gandhi's Twitter account was locked, the party launched an offensive against the social media platform in which senior leaders challenged it to take similar action.

The opposition party also tweeted the photograph of Rahul meeting the family of the nine-year-old girl, who died after being raped by a priest and three other men at a crematorium in Delhi.

The Gandhi scion had met the girl's family members on Wednesday to assure them of providing justice.

Tweeting with a hashtag 'I am Rahul', several Congress leaders also attacked the Centre for the same. "@TwitterIndia lock our accounts, we challenge you. Nothing will stop us from fighting for justice & exposing the truth," the opposition party posted along with hashtag #I am Rahul," the party tweeted.

The Congress said that Rahul's account was temporarily locked after the social media company denied the party's earlier claim that his account was temporarily suspended.

It also alleged that Twitter acted in haste due to "pressure" from the government and was "selective" in removing Rahul's tweet and "suspending" his account for putting up pictures of the victim's family as no action was taken against some other handles which carried the same pictures.

"See the double standard! @TwitterIndia how fearful are you of the Modi govt that you are singling out Rahul Gandhi's account, when Govt bodies have done the exact same thing," tweeted Congress general secretary in-charge of organisation.

Instead of ensuring justice to the victim, another senior Congress leader Randeep Surjewala claimed, the Modi government was conspiring to suppress the voices demanding sympathy and justice.

"By intimidating Twitter and even closing the account of Rahul Gandhi, it will not be able to suppress the voice of justice," the Congress chief spokesperson tweeted.

Pvt volunteer initiative on Covid data to shut shop

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@New Delhi

THE Covid-19 voluntary data collective and analytics platform — covid19india.org — that was the source of data analysis for many data experts in the country when questions were raised about data authenticity of official figures, will shut down operations by October 31.

In a blog post on its website, the organisation founder wrote that most who worked for it were volunteers who now have to go back to their normal lives.

"16 months. 300+ volunteers. 4.4 billion website visits. Numerous dashboards and projections driven by our data. Keeping India informed about Covid-19. We are a voluntary collective: No formal organization, no employees, no hierarchy — just a group of people who turn up every day to keep this going! With our work and personal lives limping back to normalcy, we believe it's time for us to look ahead and focus on them," the post said. "With our work and personal lives limping back to normalcy, we believe it's time for us to look ahead and focus on them."

What began as a concerted effort to publish data in February 2020 during the onset of the first wave of the Covid pandemic, soon became a trusted resource of information for many researchers.

The Sunday announcement came as a dampener for some of these researchers. Bhramar Mukherjee, a researcher at the University of Michigan tweeted that "in an already data poor environment in India, this is a huge loss. I am truly disappointed that Covid19india.org will phase out in October. All our models rely on their API. The noble voluntary efforts should have been supported by the officials."

Violations of human rights highest at police stations, sensitisation must: CJI

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THREAT to human rights is highest in police stations and even the privileged are not spared of third degree treatment, Chief Justice of India N V Ramana said on Sunday, calling for sensitisation of police forces in the country.

In his key note address at an event organised by the National Legal Services Authority of India (NALSA), the CJI said that to keep police excesses in check, dissemination of information about the constitutional right to legal aid and availability of free legal aid services is necessary. NALSA ought to carry out sensitisation of police officers, he added.

"The threat to human rights and bodily integrity are the highest in police stations," the CJI said.

"Custodial torture and other police atrocities are problems which still prevail in our society. In spite of constitutional declarations and guarantees, lack of effective legal representation at the police stations is a huge detriment to arrested/detained. Going by the recent reports even the privileged are not spared third-degree treatment," he noted, expressing concerns over violations of human rights.

> If, as an institution, the judiciary wants to garner the faith of the citizens, we have to make everyone feel assured that we exist for them
>
> NV Ramana, Chief Justice of India

Terming the project 'Access to Justice' as an 'unending mission', the CJI said that for becoming a society governed by the rule of law, it was necessary to "bridge the gap of accessibility to justice between the highly privileged and the most vulnerable". "If, as an institution, the judiciary wants to garner the faith of the citizens, we have to make everyone feel assured that we exist for them. For the longest time, the vulnerable population has lived outside the system of justice."

The past should not determine the future and all should work to bring equality, Justice Ramana stressed.

BJP MPs disrupted meet to avoid talks on Pegasus: Tharoor

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

AFTER a war of words with BJP MPs last week, Parliamentary Standing Committee on IT chairman Shashi Tharoor on Sunday said the meeting was disrupted by the BJP MPs as they did not want Pegasus to be discussed and that ministry officials who were to depose before the panel may have been asked to skip it.

The meeting on July 28 saw BJP MPs coming for the meeting but not signing the register on allegations that the agenda was not circulated in advance. The meeting could not take place as there was no quorum.

> Unprecedented for 10 members to attend and to refuse to sign the register... For good measure, the three officials who were to testify appear to have been instructed not to attend
>
> Shashi Tharoor, Chairman of Parl Standing Committee on IT

"For two years now the IT committee has been conducting discussions on citizens' data privacy and security and cyber security, topics that also featured in its agenda under the previous chairman, BJP's Anurag Thakur. The Pegasus issue, therefore, clearly falls under the purview of the IT committee and so it is only expected that its members will ask questions about it when these topics arise," Tharoor told a news agency.

It is no secret that the Committee's meeting on its established agenda was disrupted by BJP members who did not want Pegasus to be discussed but expressed hope that the panel would be able to take up the matter, he added.

"It was unprecedented for 10 members to attend and to refuse to sign the register in order to deny the Committee a quorum. For good measure, the three officials who were to testify that day appear to have been instructed not to attend, making last-minute excuses, which is a grievous assault on the prerogatives of parliamentary committees to summon witnesses."

The panel had summoned officials from the Ministries of Electronics and Information Technology, Home Affairs and Communications (Dot) on the subject 'Citizens data security and privacy'.

PANDEMIC HAS BROUGHT INDIA & MEXICO CLOSER

MEXICAN ambassador to India Federico Salas speaks to Pushkar Banakar on how the pandemic has changed India-Mexico ties, the Indo-US trade deal and on how the two countries can cooperate in different areas. Excerpts:

FEDERICO SALAS
Ambassador of Mexico

How has the Covid-19 pandemic affected India-Mexico ties? What were the challenges that you faced during the global pandemic?

It has changed relations in a positive way. We (India and Mexico) are some of the hardest hit countries in the world. It made us realise that we need to deal with health issues worldwide from a multilateral perspective, not only for the coronavirus pandemic but also for the future. Secondly, it brought us to a closer dialogue with India in terms of purchase of vaccines. The pandemic has brought us closer as we have a common challenge to face and we are trying to overcome it. Mexico has been looking with different eyes at the pharmaceutical sector of India and the potential it has, not only with respect to Covid but also other issues.

You had recently said that you could share your good and bad experiences with India on the trade deal with the US. What, in your opinion, is delaying the deal?

Mexico had negotiated a major trade deal with USA and Canada, the NAFTA in 1994, which was updated in June last year. We have had an extensive experience of negotiating with the US one of the most ambitious and state-of-the-art FTAs of the world. It was a complex negotiation. Mexico has always been open to share experiences and good practices in the negotiations.

The agreements are very complex. Even the first NAFTA took at least five years of intense negotiation and requires strong commitments by the negotiating parties.

I have no details in this case (India-US trade deal), but these things take time and I am not surprised. Many sectors in different countries are protective and defensive of what might happen while negotiating with an economic super power like the US. However, that is not necessarily the case, as Mexico has proved it.

Are there any plans of Mexico joining the Quad or any bloc with regard to the Indo-Pacific, as you have stated that both India and Mexico believe in a rules-based international order?

No formal discussions on Quad have taken place, but there have been discussions of academic nature and also on the concept of the Indo-Pacific. The concept is fluid and is still in the making. As we understand it, the Indo-Pacific extends from east coast of Africa to west coast of America. We discuss issues like trade facilitation and investments. Our security interests in the South China Sea are limited, but we certainly support the principle of free navigation and peaceful spaces.

Any update on the dispute between the Khadi Village and Industries Commission and a Mexican firm on the registration of the Khadi brand and logo?

I do not have details of the particular case you mentioned, but I can say that one of the good things that has happened in the relationship between Mexico and India is that it has become more intense, but there are some frictions and some disputes may arise. Fortunately, we have mechanisms to deal with this. We are negotiating with India an agreement with regard to the protection of promotion of investments. It should be finalised by the end of this year.

Most states have not spent funds for modernisation of police forces: Centre

SANA SHAKIL @New Delhi

THE funds allocated to states under a scheme for modernisation of police forces have been reducing over the last two years, but the Centre contends that most of the states were unable to utilise 'substantial' portion of the allocations.

Union MoS for Home Affairs Nityanand Rai asserted that most of the state governments have substantial unspent balances out of the funds released during earlier years.

"For the States which utilise funds timely, the scheme ('Assistance to States for Modernization of Police') has unique mechanism to provide more funds based on their efficiency in timely utilisation of funds, in the form of 'better performance incentives' which are released out of pooled amount of the funds unreleased due to non-furnishing of Utilization Certificates by other States and 'incentives for police reforms' in selected reform areas for which up to 20% of allocated funds are kept aside," he informed Parliament.

Only smaller states like Uttarakhand, Punjab, Kerala, and Mizoram have requested for more allocation, according to official records.

While ₹607.25 cr was allocated to the states for modernisation of police forces in 2018-2019, the Centre brought the funds down to ₹561 cr and ₹ 521.10 cr in the subsequent two years.

An analysis of the government data reveals that funds have dipped for all states in the country. The funds allocated to Uttar Pradesh, the most populated state in the country, came down from ₹68.39 in 2018-2019 to ₹63.19 cr in 2019-2020 and 2020-2021. Maharashtra's share dropped from ₹51 cr in 2018-2019 to ₹47.11 cr in the last two years. While the third highest allocation was allocated to Jammu and Kashmir, the scheme was stopped last year as it became a Union Territory. It had got ₹39.9 cr and ₹43.19 crore in 2019-2020 and 2018-2019. Similarly, Karnataka received ₹38.37 cr in the last two financial years as compared to ₹41.53 cr in 2018-2019.

The central funds are used for acquisition of advanced weapons; intelligence equipment including UAVs, night vision devices (NVDs), CCTV Surveillance system; modern communication equipment and state-of-the art equipment.

JD(U) will fight UP polls with or without BJP

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @Patna

THE unease between the NDA constituents – the BJP and the JD(U) – continued to grow on Sunday after the latter said it was ready to contest the 2022 Uttar Pradesh polls 'with or without BJP as an ally'. "It is up to the BJP to decide on the alliance for UP polls. We are willing go it alone in UP," newly-elected national president of JD(U) Rajiv Ranjan told the media.

There has been a growing discomfort between the parties ever since the JD(U) broke ranks to demand a probe into the Pegasus snooping and also seek a caste-based census, going against the BJP line, which wanted the headcount done only for the SCs and the STs.

Other NDA constituents –Vikashsheel Insaan Party and Hindustani Awami Morcha (Secular) –have announced that they, too, would fight the UP polls with or without allies.

Linking JD(U)'s stellar show in the Arunachal Pradesh Assembly election, when the party won seven of the 15 seats it contested, to the popularity of Chief Minister Nitish Kumar, Ranjan said his image as an able administrator would help the party expand in eastern UP. Ranjan's statement is being viewed in light of Nitish's desire to shed the regional leader tag and have a say in national politics.

> If we contest the polls alone, we would make caste census, population policy and Pegasus our major poll issues. Caste census figures on top of our priority list
>
> JD(U) leader

The party most recently contested the Assam and Bengal elections by fielding its candidates, but drew a blank. Its victory in Arunachal, too, was shortlived as all the seven legislators later defected to the BJP.

Reacting sharply to Ranjan's statement, BJP insiders said if the JD(U) did not reconsider its stand, it could lead to unpleasant developments, including the parting of ways.

However, a JD(U) leader said, "If we contest alone, we would make caste census, population policy and Pegasus our major poll issues. Caste census figures on top of our priority list." JD(U) is attempting to woo the Kurmi, Koeri and other OBC castes.

Collector pays the price for public rage against Tomar

ANURAAG SINGH @Bhopal

A day after Union agriculture minister and local BJP MP Narendra Singh Tomar faced massive protest by local residents during his visit to flood-hit Sheopur district of Madhya Pradesh, three senior officials, including Sheopur district collector were transfered to Bhopal.

Collector Rakesh Kumar Srivastava, police superintendent Sampat Upadhyaya and chief municipal officer (CMO) Mini Agrawal were shunted to state capital Bhopal on Sunday.

Meanwhile, Union civil aviation minister Jyotiraditya Scindia has begun his tour of the affected areas.

After reaching Gwalior on Saturday night, Scindia immediately met minister in-charge Tulsi Silawat and senior officers at the command and control center to take stock of the situation.

Taking potshots at former chief minister Kamal Nath for conducting aerial survey of the flood-hit Gwalior-Chambal region, Scindia said "aerial survey alone cannot reveal real picture on the ground. One needs to put his foot on ground to know about real picture and pains of people, which he (Nath) failed to do."

"The ground situation is more important than aerial surveys and that is why wherever I undertake such surveys, I make it sure to visit those places on the ground as well to assess the actual problems being faced by the people," he said.

On Sunday, the MP chief minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan reviewed the relief and rehabilitation works in flood-hit districts of Gwalior-Chambal region through video conferencing, with special focus on Sheopur district. Union minister Tomar was part of the review meeting.

Trucks with essentials roll into Mizoram after blockade is lifted

More than 100 vehicles entered the state for the first time in two weeks on Saturday night

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @Guwahati

IN a huge relief for Mizoram, an economic blockade imposed by Assam-based organisations was lifted and vehciles started moving into the state on Saturday night.

Some organisations in southern Assam's Barak Valley had blocked the roads leading to Mizoram, including the critical National Highway 306 after clashes on the interstate border left six Assam police personnel dead.

The blockade has affected the supply of essential items to Mizoram. Official sources in the state said more than 100 vehicles, including trucks carrying goods that were stranded in Cachar, entered the state on Saturday night.

"More than 100 vehicles have entered the state so far. Two trucks carrying Covid-19 relief items had set out from Cachar on Saturday night, but they had to go back due to stone-pelting," Mizoram's Kolasib Superintendent of Police Vanlalfaka Ralte told this newspaper.

He said the trucks carrying Covid-19 relief items would start arriving in the state from Monday.

At the instruction of Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma, ministers Ashok Singhal and Parimal Suklabaidya visited Cachar on Saturday evening, and they, along with senior officials of the Cachar administration, helped restore normalcy. The blockade was lifted after a series of discussions with protestors.

"They (protestors) relented in the greater interest of peace and to maintain the age-old relations between the two states," Singhal said. Mizoram minister Lalruatkima thanked the Assam government for its efforts in engaging with the protestors and convincing them to lift the blockade.

'Bhowanipore's daughter' Mamata ready for polls

PRANAB MONDAL @Kolkata

AS Trinamool Congress leader Mamata Banerjee gears up to fight a by-election from Bhowanipore Assembly constituency, the party has come up with a new slogan—Unnayan Ghore Ghore, Ghorer Meye Bhowanipore (Development is everywhere, Bhowanipore has its own daughter).

It is widely believed that the party slogan—Bangla Nijer Meyeke Chay (Bengal wants its own daughter) hit a right chord with the voters in the recent Assembly election, which the party won by a landslide.

Mamata is seeking to get elected as she lost to BJP leader Suvendu Adhikari in the Assembly elections.

The new slogan was coined by Jai Hind Bahini, a wing of the ruling party dedicated to countering the BJP. It was placed before the party leaders in a party meeting held on Saturday.

"TMC's state president Subrata Bakshi, minister Firhad Hakim and other functionaries were present in the meeting in which the new slogan was approved. Though the date of the by-election is yet to be announced, we are using the slogan on social media platforms. Besides, hoardings with the new catch-line are already being placing in the constituency from where the CM will contest," said a TMC leader.

The slogan 'Bengal wants its own daughter' is the brainchild of I-PAC, the political advocacy group of election strategist Prashant Kishor. The aims was to showcase Mamata as Bengal's own daughter and BJP as party of outsiders.

Akhil Gogoi gets call to merge party with TMC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Guwahati

ACTIVIST and Assam MLA Akhil Gogoi on Sunday said an effort was being made to form a confederation of regional parties led by West Bengal CM Mamata Banerjee to try and oust Prime Minister Narendra Modi and BJP from power in the 2024 Lok Sabha polls.

"Our interest is that all regional political parties in the country should unite, form a confederation, project Mamata Banerjee as its leader, unseat the fascist and communal Narendra Modi and elect a new PM in 2024," Gogoi, who recently visited Kolkata, told journalists in Guwahati.

"We hope the confederation of regional parties will be formed as early as possible," he said. The Raijor Dal MLA said the formation of a confederation of regional parties will also help federalism.

"The people of Assam have been fighting for federalism and a federal structure from before independence," Gogoi said. He disclosed that West Bengal CM had made an offer to him to join the TMC and merge Raijor Dal with it.

"Mamata didi had invited me for a discussion. Their proposal was that Raijor Dal and I join the TMC at the earliest and become the TMC's Assam unit president," the activist said.

He said his party would discuss the proposal and take a call.

"We thank Mamata didi that she invited us three times. Our leaders already had discussions with TMC leaders," he added.

Now, Raje loyalist plans a Rath Yatra

RAJESH ASNANI @Jaipur

THE rift in Rajasthan BJP grew wider on Sunday as one of party leader Vasundhra Raje's strong supporters and former minister Rohitashva Sharma announced that he would soon start a Rath Yatra demanding that Raje be allowed to become the next CM, if the BJP wins the 2023 elections.

Sharma, who was suspended from the BJP last month over breach of discipline, announced his decision at a grand rally in Bansur Assembly constituency of Alwar district on Sunday. He said he will travel across the state preparing the ground for Raje to be made the CM. During Sunday's rally, Sharma said he was lunching 'Vasundhara Raje Mission 2023'

"I will take a pledge with my young comrades that till Vasundhara Raje becomes the Chief Minister of Rajasthan again, I will not sleep peacefully. For this purpose, I will travel to all corners of Rajasthan and will go from village to village," Sharma said. He alleged that at present, the state BJP leaders are running the party just by sitting in their offices and not visiting villages or meeting with people. These remarks were seen as an attack on Satish Poonia, the state BJP chief who is widely seen as an arch-rival of Raje.

Much of Kunduz city now controlled by Taliban: Afghan official

Province located at strategic crossroads with good access to much of northern Afghanistan as well as the capital

KABUL

TALIBAN fighters on Sunday took control of much of the capital of northern Afghanistan's Kunduz province, including the governor's office and police headquarters, a provincial council member said. Ghulam Rabani Rabani said fighting between insurgents and government forces had taken place around the governor's office and police headquarters but that later the Taliban had taken over the two buildings. They also had control of the main prison building in Kunduz, he said, adding that fighting was continuing at the airport and other parts of the city. Kunduz is a strategic crossroads with good access to much of northern Afghanistan as well as the capital, Kabul, about 335 kilometres away.

A Taliban surge has intensified as US and NATO troops wrap up their withdrawal from the country. With Taliban attacks increasing, Afghan security forces and government troops have retaliated with airstrikes aided by the United States. The fighting has raised growing concerns about civilian casualties.

On Saturday, Taliban fighters entered the capital of Jawzjan province after sweeping through nine of 10 districts in the province. Several other of the country's 34 provincial capitals are threatened as Taliban fighters sweep through large swaths of Afghanistan at a surprising speed.

Meanwhile, airstrikes damaged a health clinic and high school in the capital of southern Afghanistan's Helmand province, a provincial council member said Sunday.

A Defense Ministry statement confirmed that airstrikes were carried out in parts of the city of Lashkar Gah. It said forces targeted Taliban positions, killing 54 fighters and wounding 23 others. It made no mention of a clinic or school being bombed.

Majid Akhund, deputy chairman of the Helmand provincial council, said airstrikes hit a health clinic and a school in the city's seventh police district late Saturday. AP

Another northern Afghan province falls

Kabul: Provincial Afghan lawmakers say the Taliban have taken control of another provincial capital, the fourth to fall into insurgent hands in less than a week, in a punishing blow to government forces. The Taliban forces overran Taleqan, the capital of the northern Takhar province on Sunday, capturing the final areas it hadn't previously controlled after a monthslong siege, the two lawmakers from the province said. Takhar has particular significance for the anti-Taliban northern alliance fighters who joined the U.S.-led coalition to oust the religious militia in 2001. AP

'UNSC urged members to call for end to violence'

UNITED NATIONS

THE crucial UN Security Council meeting on Afghanistan, held within the first week of India's Presidency of the powerful global body, galvanised members to call for an end to the violence and hostilities, and helped reveal to the outside world the dire situation facing the war-torn country, India's envoy has said.

India assumed the Presidency of the UN Security Council for the month on August 1 and wrapped up a hectic first week with discussions on Afghanistan on August 6 amidst a deteriorating security situation in the country.

A meeting on Afghanistan had not been scheduled during the month as per the Council's Programme of Work for the month. Afghanistan Foreign Minister Mohammed Haneef Atmar had spoken with External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar "to convene an emergency UN Security Council Session" on Afghanistan.

India's Permanent Representative to the UN and Security Council President for month of August Ambassador T S Tirumurti had also said during a press conference that he expected the Security Council will be looking at this aspect sooner rather than later on Afghanistan. PTI

Nepal to prioritise free Covid vax for all citizens

KATHMANDU

NEPAL'S five-party coalition government on Sunday unveiled its 'common minimum policy and programme' (CMP), prioritising free Covid vaccinations for all citizens, conclusion of the political peace process, providing relief to the pandemic-hit industries as well as marginalised people and tackling corruption among others.

> All citizens would be vaccinated against Covid by the end of the current Nepali year, which ends in April next year of the Gregorian calendar
>
> Official stmt on CMP

The 14-page document was unveiled by Nepali Congress leader and CMP coordinator Purna Khadka at an event, which was attended by Prime Minister Sher Bahadur Deuba, CPN (Maoist Center) chairman Pushpa Kamal Dahal 'Prachanda, Janata Samajwadi Party chairman Upendra Yadav and Rashtriya Janamorcha chief Chitra Bahadur KC.

The CMP also talks about pursuing a balanced foreign policy, safeguarding national interests, reviewing all accords and agreements that go against national interest and resolving outstanding border issues with neighbouring countries, including Kalapani, Limpiyadhura and Lipulekh.

Ties between India and Nepal came under severe strain after Nepal last year published a new political map that showed three Indian territories — Limpiyadhura, Kalapani and Lipulekh — as part of the Himalayan nation. The CMP added that border security would also be strengthened. PTI

Mount Merapi erupts

Lava flows down Mount Merapi, Indonesia's most active volcano, as seen from Sleman in Yogyakarta | AP FILE

YOGYAKARTA

INDONESIA'S most volatile volcano erupted Sunday on the densely populated island of Java, spewing smoke and ash high into the air and sending streams of lava and gasses down its slopes. No casualties were reported.

Mount Merapi unleashed clouds of hot ash at least seven times since Sunday morning, as well as a series of fast-moving pyroclastic flows, a mixture of rock, debris, lava and gasses, said Hanik Humaida, who heads the city of Yogyakarta's Volcanology and Geological Hazard Mitigation Center. The rumbling sound could be heard several kilometers (miles) away.

The mountain has seen increased volcanic activity in recent weeks, with its lava dome growing rapidly before partially collapsing on Sunday, sending rocks and ash flowing down the volcano's southwest flank, Humaida said. Ash from the eruption blanketed several villages and nearby towns, she said. Villagers living on Merapi's fertile slopes were advised to stay at least five kilometers (3.1 miles) away from the crater's mouth. AP

'Lebanon responsible for attacks, Hezbollah or not'

TEL AVIV

ISRAEL'S prime minister said Sunday he holds the Lebanese government responsible for rocket fire launched from its territory, whether the Hezbollah militant group launched the weapons or not. Prime Minister Naftali Bennett's comments came days after one of the heaviest flareups in violence between Israel and Hezbollah in several years and indicated Israel could expand its response if the rocket fire continues.

> It is less important to us if it's a Palestinian organisation or independent rebels that fired, the state of Israel won't accept shooting on its land
>
> Naftali Bennett, Prime Minister, Israel

"The country of Lebanon and the army of Lebanon have to take responsibility (for) what happens in its backyard," Bennett told his Cabinet.

Over several days last week, militants in Lebanon launched a barrage of rockets into Israel, drawing rare Israeli airstrikes in Lebanon. On Friday, Hezbollah fired additional rockets toward Israel, and Israel responded with heavy artillery shelling.

He spoke a day after Hassan Nasrallah, the leader of the militant Hezbollah, said he'd retaliate against any future Israeli airstrikes on Lebanon and added it would be wrong to assume Hezbollah would be constrained by internal divisions in Lebanon or the country's harsh economic crisis.

"Don't miscalculate by saying that Hezbollah is busy with Lebanon's problems," Nasrallah said, adding that the firing of rockets was a "clear message". Israel and Hezbollah are enemies who fought to a stalemate in a monthlong war in 2006.

Lebanon is experiencing its worst economic and financial crisis in its modern history, which the World Bank describes as among the worst the world has witnessed since the mid 1800s.

Israel estimates Hezbollah possesses over 130,000 rockets and missiles capable of striking anywhere in the country. In recent years, Israel also has expressed concerns that the group is trying to import or develop an arsenal of precision-guided missiles. AP

Fire devours Greek island's forests, locals urged to flee

PEFKI

PILLARS of billowing smoke and ash turned the sky orange and blocked out the sun above Greece's second-largest island on Sunday as wildfire devoured forests and encroached on villages, triggering more evacuation alerts.

The fire on Evia, an island of forested canyons laced with small coves of crystalline water, began August 3 and cut across the popular summer destination from coast to coast as it burned out of control. Scores of homes and businesses have been destroyed and thousands of residents have fled, many escaping the flames via flotillas that even operated in the dark of night.

The blaze is the most severe of dozens that broke out in the wake of Greece's most protracted heat wave in three decades, which sent temperatures soaring to 45 °C for days, creating bone-dry conditions.

Several local officials including Giannis Kontzias, mayor of the northern Evia municipality of Istiaia, took to Greek TV networks to appeal for more firefighting help, particularly from water-dropping planes.

Massive fires also have been burning across Siberia in northern Russia for weeks, forcing the evacuation Saturday of a dozen villages. In the US, hot, bone-dry, gusty weather has also fueled devastating wildfires in California. AP

Swiss protest ruling reducing rapist's sentence

BERLIN

HUNDREDS of people protested Sunday in front of a Swiss appeals court that had last month reduced the prison sentence of a rapist, arguing that the rape lasted only 11 minutes and that the victim had not been severely injured, local media reported.

The mainly female protesters in front of the Basel courthouse held up banners and shouted "11 minutes are 11 minutes too much!" They decried the court's ruling which had lowered the 33-year-old defendant's prison sentence from 4 years and three months to three years, an online news site reported.

In last month's ruling, the judge also said the female rape victim had sent out 'certain signals'.

The rape took place last year in February after a visit to a nightclub. The woman was raped by the 33-year-old and his 17-year-old companion, who is currently still being tried in a Swiss juvenile court.

Neither the victim's nor the accused men's identities were revealed. AP

Pakistan province passes resolution condemning attack on Hindu temple

PESHAWAR

THE provincial assembly of Pakistan's Khyber Pakhtunkhwa has unanimously passed a resolution condemning the attack on a Hindu temple in the country's Punjab province.

Hundreds of people, carrying sticks, stones and bricks attacked the temple at Bhong city of Rahim Yar Khan district, some 590 kms from Lahore, burning parts of it and damaging the idols on Wednesday in protest against the release by a court of an eight-year-old Hindu boy, who was arrested for allegedly urinating in a local seminary.

An FIR has been registered under terrorism and other sections of the Pakistan Penal Code against over 150 people for their involvement in attacking the temple.

The resolution at the provincial assembly of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa condemning the attack on the Hindu temple was moved by minority Member of the Provincial Assembly (MPA) Ravi Kumar to which the house gave a unanimous approval.

The house also passed a resolution for the establishment of the Commission for Minority Affairs in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa. The resolution was presented by Minister for Human Rights and Parliamentary Affairs Shaukat Yusafzai. PTI

UN climate summit in November last chance, warns UK climate chief

LONDON

ALOK SHARMA, the UK minister in charge of the COP26 climate summit talks in Glasgow in November, on Sunday warned that the meeting hosted by Britain later this year is the world's last chance to get a grip on climate change.

The Indian-origin Cabinet minister, who is the President-designate of the United Nations Climate Change Conference or COP26 in Glasgow in November, said in an interview that the world would face a climate catastrophe unless urgent action is agreed this year. He also defended his recent hectic travel agenda, which came under some media criticism for his ministerial exemption from Covid self-isolation rules on return from red list countries.

On his own travel, the minister said he was simply throwing everything at achieving a global consensus ahead of the talks in Glasgow. "I have every week a large number of virtual meetings, but I can tell you that having in-person meetings with individual ministers is incredibly vital and actually impactful. It makes a vital difference, to build those personal relationships which are going to be incredibly important as we look to build consensus," the minister, who has travelled to countries such as Bangladesh and Bolivia in recent weeks, told the Observer.

> You're seeing on a daily basis what is happening across the world. Last year was the hottest on record. I don't think we're out of time. I think we're getting dangerously close to when we might be out of time — Alok Sharma, UK minister

His interview comes ahead of a report by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), the world's leading authority on climate science, out on Monday showing the true impact of extreme weather. "This [IPCC report] is going to be the starkest warning yet that human behaviour is alarmingly accelerating global warming and this is why COP26 has to be the moment we get this right. We can't afford to wait two years, five years, 10 years. This is the moment," Sharma warned. PTI

It is time to cast a wider health cover net

Covid-19 may be a black swan event, but the experience has forced people to review healthcare preparedness

DIPAK MONDAL @ New Delhi

KOLKATA-based Saurabh Basu (name changed) had to be hospitalized as he suffered from a severe lung infection after he was infected by the Covid-19 virus at the peak of the second wave this summer. Basu underwent a medical procedure called extra-corporeal membrane oxygenation (EMCO). The procedure costs ₹1.5- 2 lakh a day, in addition to the ₹25 lakh initial cost.

He was in the hospital for a month and his hospital bills exceeded ₹75 lakh. Unfortunately, Basu's health insurance policy and savings could cover only a fraction of the cost and his family had to start a fundraising programme in Ketto. They targeted a fundraise of ₹60 lakh, but could only raise ₹30 lakh.

This is not a one-off case, as people have thronged crowd-funding websites like Ketto and Milaap to raise funds for the treatment of Covid-19 related complications. Ketto says it hosted over 6,000 Covid treatment-related fundraisers and raised over ₹80 crore during the pandemic.

There is a lesson in Basu's experience—a standard ₹5 lakh family floater health insurance plan is no longer enough to cover the cost of medical emergencies. Due to a lack of quality government hospitals, people have to depend on private hospitals for any medical emergencies. And with healthcare costs constantly growing at 8-10 per cent a year, they have to fall back on their savings since their health insurance cover falls short of the cost of treatment in private hospitals.

How much is enough?

A Covid-19-like pandemic is a once-in-a-century event and it is not always possible for an individual to be prepared in advance. But the Covid-19 experience has certainly forced people to review their healthcare preparedness.

The foremost of which is a health insurance policy large enough to cover the treatment of any critical medical condition. Many financial planners feel that people should get themselves covered by up to ₹25 lakh through health insurance plans since the cost of medical procedures and hospital stays continue to soar.

Take, for example, the cost of bypass surgery. The surgery alone could cost anywhere from ₹3.5 lakh to ₹5 lakh, on top of which are other costs—such as for medicines, room rents, and specialist fees. Based on the treatment needed, the hospital could charge a minimum bill of as much as ₹8-10 lakh.

If you have a family floater health insurance with a ₹5 lakh cover, you may end up digging into your savings. And God forbid, if another family member falls sick during the same year, you would be on your own since you have already exhausted your cover. How do you ensure that your health insurance doesn't fall short?

Reinforce with top-up, riders

"One should consider a super top-up policy with sum insured of ₹25 lakh or more as the premium is reasonably low," says Pankaj Mathpal, MD, Optima Money Managers.

Top-up plans are additional health covers that you can take over and above the basic health insurance cover. So, if you have a ₹5 lakh basic cover, you could reinforce it by buying a top-up policy at a fraction of the cost of the basic cover.

For example, a family floater plan for a 4-member family with the oldest member being 30 years could cost anywhere from ₹12,000-15,000 a year. A ₹10-lakh top-up plan over the base plan could cost ₹2,000-3,000 for each member. The top-up plan kicks-in only when the basic cover has been exhausted.

Sanjay Datta, Chief-Underwriting and Claims, ICICI Lombard, says that even if one has an employer-provided basic health cover, they can buy a top-up plan to increase coverage. They can also buy a rider at a nominal cost. Riders such as a critical illness cover pay a lump sum amount on the diagnosis of any of the serious diseases mentioned in the policy.

Policies with ₹1 crore cover

Some health insurance companies have launched innovative products with inbuilt top-up plans like Bupa Health Insurance's ₹1 crore health cover—a combination of a ₹5 lakh base policy and a ₹95 lakh top-up.

Then there are plans with restore benefits, which means if you run out of coverage, the policy will restore your base coverage up to 100 per cent. There are also plans that increase the base coverage automatically by 50 per cent after 1 year and to 100 per cent after 2 years, even if a claim is made.

Irrespective of how healthy a life one leads, you can be sure that you or your family may face a health emergency at any time. And the first step in getting ready to face such emergencies is to have a big enough health insurance cover.

ZOMATO AND THE BUZZ AROUND IT

IT flatters me that a good half decade and more after I laid down the mantle of 'theIPOGuru', there is still no dearth of calls from media personnel seeking a view or a byte when there is a spate of high profile IPOs on. Recently, I received a spate of calls for the Zomato IPO and its Valuation. Notably, the excitement continued post its Listing too.

This intrigued me and I confess to having looked up, not so much the Zomato stock and its valuation, but the Food Delivery Business it is engaged in. The Indian Food service market can be divided into three channels - dine-in, takeaway, and food delivery. Of these three, CLSA expects the food delivery business to witness the highest growth. Its market size is expected to more than treble from $3.5 billion in FY20 to $11 billion by FY26. Growth in population, increasing smartphone penetration, expansion into new markets and higher-order frequency from existing customers are expected to fuel this growth.

Over the years, multiple revenue streams have evolved and as compared to just commissions from restaurants which was the primary revenue stream driver for online food services platforms earlier, now, delivery fees, membership fees and listing fees for restaurants have also emerged as revenue streams. There is huge potential for growth in terms of geographical expansion too in the food delivery business, but the time frame in the march to profitability is not always certain.

There is definite potential for generating better profit if one charges customers optimally, keeping discounts lower. However, that is easier said than done as beyond a certain point, if the commission and other charges collected by a food aggregator were to significantly exceed the sum of discounts offered to consumers and cost of delivery, then there is a fair chance that both, the consumers and the restaurants, will prefer to transact directly, bypassing the aggregator.

Most of the business models in this segment lend themselves to horizontal diversification into multiple adjacent businesses like sourcing and delivering groceries, meat, alcohol, and medicine, as well as the pick-up and delivery of other items. Such a diversification might not be profitable for a while, but yet, offers good growth potential.

Overall, this is a fascinating business segment with two major players dominating it in India. The emergence of a third entrant with deep pockets in recent times should shake up things a fair bit, but as of now, the industry looks to be in good stead for expansion and growth ahead. I have my own hunch as to which of the three existing players will emerge trumps post the shootout but let me keep that bit to myself for now.

As I said at the outset of this column—Right now, I have moved on from the business of analyzing IPOs. I would be curious, though, to see which of the Mutual Funds we track have Zomato stock in their portfolio.

WHAT IS GOOD AND BAD NEWS FOR MARKETS?

FINANCIAL markets trigger greed and fear. People have a different view on the same stock or a bond, which helps create a healthy market. Emotions of greed and fear induce the demand and supply needed to keep price equilibrium.

This column has often argued in favour of knowledge before putting your money on the line. Your finances are dependent on your ability to assimilate macro and microdata points. These factors influence your money and effectively your ability to save and invest efficiently.

The good for your money

Any information that suggests better economic growth is good for markets and your money.

"Our overarching priority is that growth impulses are nurtured to ensure a durable recovery along a sustainable growth path with stability," said Shaktikanta Das, governor of the Reserve Bank of India (RBI), last week. The monetary policy committee of the RBI kept vital borrowing rates unchanged last week.

The simple explanation for the statement is that the RBI would continue to support economic growth by keeping interest rates low for as long as it is necessary. That is good news for the markets because businesses can borrow money at a reasonable rate.

Goods and Services Tax

The Goods and Services Tax (GST) monthly collection is emerging as a lead indicator of economic activity. There is growth in the collection made recently over previous months and last year. All of that is good for the market. A rising GST monthly collection trend indicates an increase in spending since it is an expenditure tax. Despite widespread criticism of high fuel taxes, the government continues to take a hard line and maintain them. A robust tax collection helps government allocate resources towards capital spending and emergency needs.

So, if you read about it, you must hope for better government interventions in the light of the pandemic. At the same time, it also reduces the government dependence on market borrowing. It rose sharply in 2020-21 due to the first and the second wave of the pandemic. That puts pressure on the government finances and reduces the availability of money for businesses to borrow. For now, it is not hurting so much as the credit demand from companies is low. However, as the economic activity picks up, they may need more money. If the government takes away the money in the banking system to meet expenditure, it will put pressure on interest rates.

The bad for your money

The consumer price inflation rate continues to be a concern. The RBI's monetary policy committee has called for a joint effort from the central and state governments to bring down fuel prices. The committee noted that the economy continues to face supply shocks that cause problems in bringing necessary goods to the market efficiently. As prices of critical goods that businesses and individuals consume remain high, the RBI's 'accommodative' monetary policy stance could be at risk. Professor Jayanth R Varma, an RBI monetary policy committee member, has already voiced dissent about the RBI stance. While he supported the decision to leave borrowing rates unchanged, he expressed reservations about supporting growth in the light of inflation risks ahead.

Any sudden rise in consumer price inflation could hurt RBI's ability to keep borrowing rates low. In a situation where economic growth is shaky and still not near pre-pandemic levels, firm borrowing rates would be bad news. It would hurt business expansion when it is needed the most. Companies need to enhance their economic activity but expand existing capacity to create new jobs.

What do you do

You need to observe these trends. When you read reports, keep an eye on the way these trends influence businesses. Listed companies announce financial results regularly. They often put out the commentary on the impact of inflation and other macro-economic factors on their business.

The RBI committee has observed that input prices for companies are rising, but they cannot pass it on to consumers due to weak demand. The ability of a business to successfully price products or services matters from the profitability standpoint. That would make or break a company's share price.

18% GST on ready-to-cook idli, dosa mixes, rules AAR

READY-to-cook dosa, idli, porridge mix, etc., sold in powdered form are taxable at 18 per cent, even though the GST rate is 5 per cent if they are sold as batter, the Tamil Nadu bench of the Authority for Advance Ruling (AAR) has ruled. Krishna Bhavan Foods and Sweets had approached the bench seeking a ruling on the Goods and Services Tax (GST) rate applicable on 49 products sold under a brand name, such as bajra, jowar, ragi and multigrain porridge mix,

The AAR observed that the products sold by the entity are all food preparations in the form of powder. "The Dosai Mixes and Idli Mixes are packed and sold as mixes which are to be mixed with water/boiled water/curd to make it as batter and the product sold is a powder and not batter... All the 49 products for which the ruling is sought... the applicable rate is 9 per cent CGST and 9 per cent SGST," the AAR ruled.

AMRG & Associates Senior Partner Rajat Mohan said, "This kind of legal interpretation by the authority for the advance ruling would lead to an inverted duty structure for the entire industry, posing them to file tax refunds on a regular basis". PTI

Bulls to dominate stock markets, experts advise reducing risk

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

AFTER eight weeks of consolidation and range-bound trading, India's equity markets had a record rally last week. The NSE Nifty50 created history by crossing the 16,000 mark while the BSE Sensex gained 3 per cent to touch a lifetime high of 54,717 points.

On an average, the two benchmark indices, helped by heavyweights such as Infosys, TCS, ICICI Bank, and the HDFC twins, gained around 3 per cent during the week.

Experts believe that, going forward, the bulls are likely to dominate the market as India's economy is recovering from the second Covid-19 wave and corporates are reporting better-than-expected financial results the first quarter of the current financial year (Q1FY22).

"Technically, on weekly charts, the Nifty has formed a strong breakout formation, which indicates a further uptrend from current levels," said Shrikant Chouhan, executive vice president, Equity Technical Research at Kotak Securities.

He added that the medium-term trend is bullish and buying on dips and selling on rallies would be the ideal strategy for the positional traders. "The 16150-16050 (Nifty) level would be the strong support zone for the index. Trading above the same, the uptrend wave is likely to continue till 16400-16550 levels. Below 16050, breakout traders may prefer to exit from trading in long positions," said Chouhan.

Sameet Chavan, Chief Analyst-Technical and Derivatives, Angel Broking, advised traders to reduce their holdings if the Nifty reaches as high as the 16,400-16,500 level.

"Although, the upward trend has just resumed, we would advise short term traders to start lightening up positions if Nifty reaches the mentioned levels in coming days," he said. He added, "We are not at all advising to go against the current trend; but at least taking some money off the table on existing positions is always a good ploy."

This week, market momentum is likely to be decided by inflation data, to be released along with IIP on August 12. Multiple heavyweights will also release June quarter earnings, whereas four IPOs—Car Trade, Nuvoco Vistas, Aptus Value Housing and Chemplast Sanmar—will hit Dalal Street during the week.

Mid- & heavy-weight stocks favoured

Most analysts recommended stocks of mid and heavy weight companies. Motilal Oswal recommends largecaps such as ICICI Bank, SBI, Infosys, HCL Technologies, UltraTech, M&M, HUVR, Titan, Divi's Labs, SAIL, and SBI Cards and Midcaps such as Max Financials, Chola Finance, JK Cements, Indian Hotels, Deepak Nitrite, Burger King, ICICI Securities, Orient Electric, etc.

Quiet the Games

I went out, had all the confidence in these amazing women. I wanted to take it all in one last time around, and it was special. Allyson Felix, after clinching record 11th Olympic medal

FINAL SPLASH

Serbia retained their Olympic men's water polo title on Sunday with a 13-10 victory over Greece, winning the last of 339 gold medals on offer. Dusan Mandic, Nikola Jaksic and Andrija Prlainovic scored three goals apiece as Serbia defended the title they won in Rio five years ago.

Seven wonders

India's Olympic contingent will come back to the country in the knowledge that, between them, they have won seven medals. It's their best Games. Here's a look at how that was possible but also what needs to be done to ensure a Rio like situation (they won six in London before two in Rio) doesn't happen...

MIRABAI CHANU

For a country that's used to waiting more than a week for Olympic glory, the weightlifter's silver, coming on the opening day, really was something else. It lifted the spirits of the sporting community and showed that pre-Olympics' medal preparation (more on that later) could be trusted, at least for a while. However, with the International Olympic Committee (IOC) tweaking its rules, weightlifting, which has a history of doping and corruption, could well exit the Games. It would be unfortunate — one of the few disciplines that has seen multiple Indian medalists — but the authorities will have to identify other paths to success.

BAJRANG PUNIA

Came into the event as one of the favourites to medal and lived up to his billing. However, there were a few hiccups in the earlier rounds but fair play to fight his way through the draw. The one obvious lesson for Bajrang is to not exert himself during the months leading upto the big event. The injury he suffered in June meant he could not even practice with a sparring partner for over two weeks, which hampered his preparations in the run up to the Games. The wrestlers had had a commendable show, especially in men's. Deepak Punia missed out on a medal narrowly.

PV SINDHU

She needs no introduction. Her big match prowess, even coming into the Games, was well documented. So it wasn't a surprise to see her beating China's He Bingjiao to bring home bronze. That, ultimately, will be her legacy. India expects to win the biggest medals and, to be fair, she has always met those expectations — a generational athlete. However, the sport, as a whole disappointed. There needs to be renewed impetus to produce more medal winners. Sending just four athletes into the Games is disproportionate to the investment sport has seen in the last decade. If it weren't for Sindhu's bronze, badminton's failure will have made headline news.

NEERAJ CHOPRA

A first ever medal in athletics could possibly open hitherto unopened doors, it's just a question of using Neeraj as an example to sell the dream to countless young athletes. However, Neeraj's mark shouldn't be allowed to hide the deficiency of the athletics programme. A few of them returned with timings and performances way below their best. After so much talk about the relay programme, the mixed team disappointed. While the men's team set a new national record that they failed to qualify for the final speaks volumes about where India currently is at.

RAVI DAHIYA

People who cover wrestling will tell you Ravi Dahiya was nailed on for a medal. He himself knew that, having stuck an image of an Olympic gold in his room before the Games. A big plus from a discipline that's really got the grassroots right with multiple medallists from across age groups. The question now is can they start owning the event in a decade's time? From an overall perspective, the women's programme can do with some looking into. All of them combined won one bout (Vinesh Phogat) and ultimately disappointed. Vinesh's early exit was particularly hard to take given that she was one of the strongest contenders.

HOCKEY

38 people (including the six reserves and back up keepers) went, all 38 will come back as winners. Sure, the women's team did not medal but, arguably, no other team or individual enhanced their reputation as much as them. What they did over the last 10 days is worthy of a rousing Netflix documentary. As far as the men's side is concerned, it's been a long time coming. They have finally delivered after, global medals at both World League Final in 2017 and Champions Trophy in 2016. But to use this momentum, both teams need bigger results at the Asiad, CWG and the World Cup, all of them inside the next 16 months.

LOVLINA BORGOHAIN

Even as there was renewed focus on MC Mary Kom and Amit Panghal, the Assam-born boxer punched her way to history, bringing home a much-needed medal for a sport that came into criticism following a disastrous show in the Rio Olympics five years ago. The next challenge is to match the likes of Busenaz Surmenali, who dominated Borgohain in the semifinal. However, the men's programme will receive some flak. All of them failed including Panghal, one of the biggest medal hopes going into Tokyo. High performance director Santiago Nieva has shown that he's a capable man by getting his wards to medal in continental championships. The next step is global medals.

NEAR MISS

ADITI ASHOK

Of all the fourth place heartbreaks, this is the one that will sting for a long bit. Twice, she came within millimetres of sinking a birdie that could have potentially taken her to a play-off. That she was ice cool and composed while teeing off with Lydia Ko and Nelly Korda — two golfing royalties — spoke about how well she handled pressure. The talent is very much there, the next stage in her evolution process is to see if she can start finishing in the top 10 of the five Majors. No Indian athlete has more appearances at Majors than her, male or female, and she is only 23.

BIG MISS

SHOOTING

If ever there was an Olympic category for over the top pre Olympics predictions, India's shooting contingent would have won gold for the estimates. Of course the media and fans will have to share that burden because most went by world ranking and recent performances without putting those results into some kind of context. There's little doubt that the shooting programme needs some sort of root and branch review. Since Abhinav Bindra's gold, there's been two medals and none in the last two Games. For all the pre Games bluster, the squad, for whatever reason, literally misfired. Barring Saurabh Chaudhary, none of the shooters even managed to reached the final.

Battling pain for Olympic medal gain

Wrestler Bajrang went against doctor's advice after sustaining knee injury in June to secure bronze in Tokyo

FIROZ MIRZA @Chennai

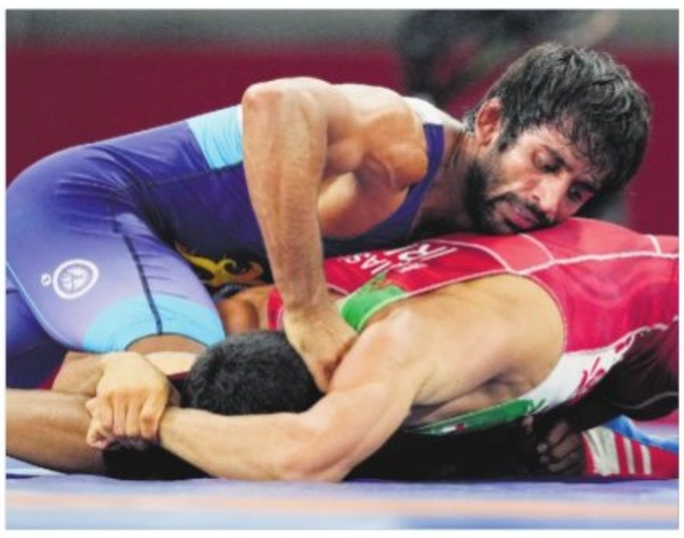
SOON after sustaining knee injury in Russia during a local tournament in June, ace wrestler Bajrang Punia was advised by his doctor to head back to India for further examination, treatment and rehabilitation. Had he listened to the advise, Bajrang may have not even taken part in the Tokyo Olympics. Touted as one of India's biggest medal prospects, Bajrang believed the travel will not only disturb his schedule but also put him at risk because of the Covid pandemic and decided to stay put enduring pain.

From there on, Bajrang tried his best to strictly follow the rehab programme as suggested by his doctor, but the injury kept him away from the mat for almost 20-25 days. Forget about the training, according to Bajrang, he could not even run during those days.

"I consulted my doctor back in India after sustaining the knee injury. He asked me to come back and fly to Tokyo from therebut I did not agree as it would have affected my training and also expose me to Covid infection during travel. I requested him to provide me with a rehab programme. I followed it strictly but the pain remained," informed the wrestler during a media interaction organised on Sunday.



Bajrang Punia won a do-or-die contest on Saturday to return with bronze | AP

The lack of physical training took a toll on his game and it was evident when he entered the mat at the Makuhari Messe Hall in Chiba city on Friday. Battling pain, the 27-year-old Haryana wrestler, however, managed to win the first three bouts but lost in the semifinal.

Bajrang is known for his forward-moving style and attacking opponents from the word go. But injury forced him to alter his natural game. "Doctor and physio asked me to strap my knee to ensure I do not aggravate the injury further. I also do not want to take any risk. However, in the bronze medal bout I decided to go without it (strapping) as I do not feel comfortable in it. It feels like someone has tied my leg. I requested my physio and doctor to let me go without it as that was the last bout and I would have enough time to recover if I get injured further," added the three-time world medallist.

The decision paid dividends as Bajrang outclassed Kazakh wrestler Daulet Niyazbekov 8-0 to bag bronze. Bajrang, however, is not happy with the show. "I am upset with myself as I cannot come true to the expectations of my countrymen. I will try my best to win a gold medal for the country in the 2024 Paris Olympics."

He will undertake a rehabilitation programme on reaching the country before starting training for the World Championships scheduled for October. Bajrang asserted that every event is a learning curve and the Olympics is no different. Speaking on his Georgian coach Shako Bentinidis and their future plan, he said, "At the moment, we are discussing the weaknesses and analysing performance at the Games. We haven't thought yet whether we will continue or not."

He also made it clear that he will continue fighting in 65kg and dedicated his bronze medal to Covid warriors.

The bio-mechanics brain behind Neeraj

INDRANEEL DAS @Chennai

THE nation is still recovering from Saturday's emotionally charged big moment. That gold won by Neeraj Chopra in a discipline that's considered the best and most glamorous at the Olympics has surely excited people. Every story and anecdote associated with the champion has been told and retold in loop. Amidst all this euphoric celebration, one man who has helped Neeraj in his quest for gold quietly left for home in Germany in the wee hours of Sunday.

Klaus Bartonietz personifies calmness. A lover of nature, Klaus' next target is reaching the highest peak in Germany. "My mother used to stay there and the peak fascinated me," he told this daily after Neeraj won the medal and how he would like to spend time in Germany. "I have not gone home for more than a year because of our training. We had to meticulously chalk out our plan and set targets."

Though a bio-mechanic expert, Klaus has a Johannes Vetter connect too. He coached Vetter's coach, Boris Henry. Klaus is enjoying his stint with Neeraj. In fact, the two got together and started working more intimately after his elbow surgery in 2019. His form dipped in 2017-2018 and Neeraj started to prefer working with him over Uwe Hohn. Shifting of pressure from the legs to upper body was not uniform and the elbow was taking most of the load. Orthopaedic surgeon Dinshaw Pardiwala performed the two-hour surgery on his locked right elbow and rehabilitation was under physio Heath Mathew in Mumbai.

After the recovery, Neeraj started training with Klaus closely and their association blossomed. Klaus, the man he is, doesn't want to take much credit. He believes it was a great teamwork between Sports Authority of India, the Athletics Federation of India and other stakeholders. "The SAI made sure we got everything," he said. The Europe visit was one such example. Denied visa by a lot of countries because of the pandemic, the athlete managed to go to Portugal after the ministry of external affairs and the sports ministry intervened.

Recollecting the times after recovery, Klaus said Neeraj had a lot of problems with his elbow. "He is a very good boy and listens to whatever we say," he said. "He understands how important correct training is. We used to watch a lot of video analysis of his movements and tried sorting out his release issue. The momentum and the power shifting to javelin was one area we worked upon. It was a big challenge."

The coach feels Neeraj is a great athlete. "Not just a javelin thrower but as an athlete, he is great. He listens to his body and he knows how much load his body can take. He understands us and our planning. He is not after money, doesn't do any advertising or commercials. He is totally focussed on the sport. He is good in sprints and he is good in gymnastics and jumps." Klaus also says that he is not the only one that made him great. "There were other coaches before me who worked with him and they too helped him," said the coach.

Even AFI president Adille Sumariwalla felt that Klaus's association with Neeraj was good. "We needed a second coach as the javelin pool was getting bigger and we found Klaus," said Sumariwalla. "Since 2019 the two were working together. Since Neeraj was comfortable training with Klaus, we thought the association should continue. He is a matured person and had been guiding him. And the records are reflection of a proper system in place."

Neeraj was spotted during a junior inter-district national meet conducted by the AFI nine years ago. "We spotted him and nurtured him," said Sumariwalla

Canada's Kelsey cycles to victory

SHIZUOKA: Canada's Kelsey Mitchell won gold in the women's sprint of track cycling on the final day, just four years after taking up the sport. Mitchell won the first two races in a best-of-three final against Olena Starikova of Ukraine to clinch Canada's first gold medal at the Izu Velodrome. Hong Kong's Lee Wai-sze took bronze. It is only Canada's second Olympic gold medal ever in track cycling.

The other individual medallists — Mirabai Chanu, Ravi Kumar Dahiya, Lovlina Borgohain, PV Sindhu and Bajrang Punia — will get `1 crore each. ## BOXING

Ex-football int'l who once drove a taxi, now an Oly champ

AFP @ Tokyo

LAUREN Price has represented Wales in football, played handball at youth international level and is also a former world champion at kickboxing.

Oh, and she also does taekwondo and once had a stint as a taxi driver.

But the sporting all-rounder topped all that on Sunday at the Tokyo Olympics when she defeated China's Li Qian on unanimous points for middleweight gold. The 27-year-old Briton, who was already a boxing world and European champion, reflected on her unlikely journey to Olympic glory. "I was playing (football) for Wales, and I was so busy at the time because I was kick-boxing, playing football, I was on the taekwondo team as well for six months.

"I thought if boxing didn't work out for me, I could always go back to playing football.

"But there was just something about it, being in that ring on my own. I just loved the feeling."

Price said it will only be boxing from now on — and definitely no more driving taxis.

"Those days are well gone now," she laughed of being a cabbie in the past. "Boxing's the one for me and I am going to stick to boxing. This tops everything I've done."

Lauren Price | AP

Price was emotional in the aftermath, thinking about her late grandfather, and dedicated gold to her grandparents.

"He was a massive part of my life and if it wasn't for him or my nan, then I wouldn't have achieved anything," she said.

"I can't thank them enough. They've always encouraged me, they've spent thousands of pounds on me over the years to send me away to tournaments and stuff like that.

"This is for them."

USA fall short in final hurdle

Richard Torrez Jr. stared up at 6-foot-7 Bakhodir Jalolov and didn't blink, courageously holding his own and staying on his feet against the most intimidating fighter in Tokyo.

Keyshawn Davis and Andy Cruz traded shots for three thrilling rounds, showing off some of the most polished boxing skills in the entire Olympics. The final two Americans in the Tokyo field got agonizingly close to ending their team's 17-year men's gold medal drought Sunday, only to fall short against two of the best boxers who stepped into the Kokugikan Arena.

Lionel Messi bids an emotional exit from Spanish giants Barcelona after spending nearly two decades at the club

ASSOCIATED PRESS @ Barcelona

STRUGGLING to control his emotions, Lionel Messi said Sunday in his farewell to Barcelona that he wasn't prepared to leave the club.

Messi began crying even before he started speaking at his farewell ceremony at the Camp Nou Stadium, and had to stop talking to compose himself few times.

"This is very hard for me after so many years, after being here my entire life," he said. "I wasn't prepared."

Messi said that, unlike last year when he asked to leave, he had his mind set on staying with Barcelona and did everything possible to make it happen. He added that he was surprised to hear he wouldn't be able to stay because of the club's debt and the Spanish league's financial fair play regulations.

"In these last few days I was thinking about what I would say today, but to be honest I couldn't come up with anything. I was blocked, like I still am right now," Messi said. "I was convinced that we would remain with the club, which is our home."

Messi's family and some of his teammates were at the Camp Nou for the emotional farewell. He was applauded several times by those in the audience.

Messi called his unexpected departure from the club "the most difficult" moment of his career. "There were many tough moments, many losses, but in the end you always went back to training and to playing again," he said. "This is different. There is no going back. This is the end and now a new story begins."

Messi said he hopes to return to the club in some capacity one day and that he wished he could have said goodbye to fans in a match with a capacity crowd chanting his name.

Messi avoided speaking specifically about his future, saying he received offers from several clubs after the announcement that he would leave the Catalan club. When asked about Paris Saint-Germain, Messi admitted it was "a possibility."

Barcelona announced Thursday it could not keep its greatest player because it wasn't able to fit a new contract within the Spanish league's financial fair-play regulations. The club's salary cap has been significantly slashed because of its huge debt. President Joan Laporta blamed the club's struggles on the coronavirus pandemic and particularly on the previous administration led by Josep Bartomeu.

Messi asked to leave at the end of the 2019-20 season but had his request denied by Bartomeu. The Argentina star had agreed to stay and had reached agreement with Barcelona on a new contract, but the club wasn't able to make it work because of its dire financial situation. Messi spent nearly two decades with the Catalan club after arriving from Argentina as a teenager to play in its youth squads. He made his first-team debut as a 17-year-old in 2004, then played 17 seasons with the main squad. He helped the club win the Champions League four times, the Spanish league 10 times, the Copa del Rey seven times and the Spanish Super Cup eight times.

Messi leaves as Barcelona's all-time leading scorer with 672 goals. He played in 778 matches with the club, also a record. He is also the overall top scorer in the Spanish league with 474 goals from 520 matches.

He led the Spanish league in scoring in eight seasons, and was the top scorer in the Champions League six times. His 26 goals against Real Madrid are a record for the "clasico" matches against Barcelona's fiercest rival.

India will follow same template, says Kohli

AGENCIES @ Nottingham

THIS team will be 'our template' going ahead, Indian captain Virat Kohli said after the rain-marred opener against England ended in a draw on Sunday, meaning they will stick to the 4-1 pace-spin combination in the remainder of five-Test series.

So it will be a toss-up between Ravindra Jadeja and Ravichandran Ashwin in the upcoming four matches, with the former preferred for the first Test in which India were deprived of a victory owing to persistent rain that washed out the entire fifth day's play. "We were expecting rain on days three and four but it chose to come on day five. It would have been enjoyable to play and watch, but it's a shame," Kohli said after the match.

"This is exactly what we wanted to do; start strong. On day five we knew we had our chances. We certainly felt like we were on top of the game." India needed to score 157 runs on the final day but the rain did not allow a single ball to be bowled.

The first Test between England and India ended in a draw after the fifth day at Trent Bridge in Nottingham was washed out due to rain | AP

"Getting that lead was crucial, but it's a shame we couldn't finish day five. Getting to fifty overnight was important. We just didn't want to play for survival. Our intent kept us ahead." Kohli added, "We were talking of a lead of 40-odd but we ended up with 95 and those runs were gold dust. Most likely this will be our template in this series, but adaptability has been our strength. The conditions and the pace on the wicket needs to be seen, but this team will be our template. England and India have always been a blockbuster, and looking forward to the next Test match."

Kipchoge claims second straight marathon gold

PAT GRAHAM @ Tokyo

ELIUD Kipchoge just decided it was time to sprint away. Simple as that. He never really even looked back. Except near the finish, simply to see if anyone was there. Of course, no one was even close. Kipchoge pulled away late and pretty much went for a stroll in the park — Odori Park — as the 36-year-old Kenyan defended his Olympic marathon title Sunday.

Immediately after his finish, he held up two fingers to acknowledge his back-to-back marathon titles. Clearly, though, he's No. 1. "King," one of his fellow racers said as he walked by. Kipchoge finished in 2 hours, 8 minutes, 38 seconds on a breezy and humid day along the streets of Sapporo. It was 80 seconds ahead of runner-up Abdi Nageeye of the Netherlands. Bashir Abdi of Belgium earned bronze to close out the track and field portion of the Tokyo Games.

Kipchoge becomes the third athlete to win multiple gold medals in the men's marathon, joining Abebe Bikila (1960, 1964) and Waldemar Cierpinski (1976, 1980). About his reaction before making his move: "That smile is the happiness," Kipchoge said. "They say to enjoy this world is to be happy." About that late surge: "I wanted to test my fitness. I wanted to test how I'm feeling. I was feeling right." About his legacy: "I want to be the inspiration for the next generation."

On a day with plenty of cloud cover, Kipchoge simply cruised. The temperature was around 77 degrees Fahrenheit (25 degrees Celsius) at the start and climbing to 84 degrees (29 degrees). The men's race stayed at the same time after the women's race was moved up an hour the day before to avoid the heat. It was humid, though, at around 81% as the runners wound their way through Sapporo, which is located about 500 miles (about 830 kilometers) north of Tokyo. The race was moved to escape the extreme heat, but it was about the same temperature in Tokyo — and rainy.

Taking the starting line were 106 runners. Finishing were far less, with 30 not making it to the end. The top American was Galen Rupp in eighth place. "It was a little rough out there," Rupp said. "My body shut down a little bit. I'm proud of the way I competed. Still tried to hold it together. Everything is telling you to stop. Just the way it goes sometimes."

The real race was for the other medals. Nageeye, feeling strong and looking solid for silver, spent time urging his training partner, Abdi, through the latter part of the course and into bronze. "I wait for him to get close and see he was next to me and then I sprinted and he was able to follow me," explained Nageeye, who's also trained with Kipchoge. "It's amazing we can share this moment. It's crazy."

Along the way, runners were treated to actual fans clapping and cheering. One fan even brought drums, making the atmosphere feel almost normal. Spectators haven't been allowed in the venues during the Tokyo Olympics because of coronavirus protocols.

'Most challenging' Games comes to end

AFP @ Tokyo

THE Tokyo 2020 Games were declared closed on Sunday by IOC chief Thomas Bach, who said it had been the "most challenging Olympic journey" after a year's pandemic delay and threats of cancellation.

Bach called the Tokyo Games "unprecedented" as he addressed the 68,000-seat Olympic Stadium, which was empty of spectators as Japan battles a record coronavirus outbreak.

"In these difficult times we are all living through, you give the world the most precious of gifts: hope," the International Olympic Committee president told athletes at the ceremony.

"And now I have to mark the end of this most challenging Olympic journey to Tokyo: I declare the Games of the 32nd Olympiad closed," Bach said.

It marked a low-key end to an extraordinary Olympics that have mostly played out in empty venues with only athletes, team officials and media present. Athletes have lived in strict biosecure conditions with social distancing at the Olympic Village and instructions to wear masks unless eating, sleeping, training or competing.

As the Olympic flag was passed to Paris mayor Anne Hidalgo for the 2024 Games, live footage showed cheering crowds in the French capital — in stark contrast to Tokyo.

Bach has described how the IOC considered cancelling the Olympics and claiming the costs on its insurance policy but said officials ploughed ahead with holding the Games "for the athletes". The Olympics were plagued by low Japanese support as they went ahead with Tokyo and other regions under a state of emergency and with infections multiplying to new highs.

But Japan's record haul of 27 golds to finish third on the table has won hearts. Britain were fourth with 22 and the Russian Olympic Committee were fifth with 20.

IOC gives itself more power to drop sports from Olympics

AP @ Tokyo

THE International Olympic Committee voted in the new powers amid prolonged issues with the leadership of weightlifting and boxing. Both sports already had their quota of athletes cut for the 2024 Paris Olympics and weightlifting could be dropped entirely.

The Olympic Charter was amended so the full IOC membership can remove a sport if its governing body does not comply with a decision made by the IOC executive board or if it "acts in a manner likely to tarnish the reputation of the Olympic movement."

The IOC widened its authority by adding a "but not limited to" clause that goes beyond the stated reasons for removing a sport.

The executive board, which is chaired by IOC President Thomas Bach, also got new powers to suspend a sport or event discipline from the Olympics if its governing body refuses to comply with a decision.

The need for new rules was presented to the membership by IOC vice president John Coates, who also leads the Olympic body's legal commission and is a close Bach ally.

"In the recent past, the IOC has been confronted with situations raising serious concerns regarding the governance of certain international federations," Coates said at the end-of-Games meeting.

Weightlifting is most at risk of being cut from the Paris Olympics because of long-term doping cases and governance issues, including financial corruption. The International Weightlifting Federation was led for two decades until last year by long-time former IOC member Tamás Aján. The governing body's problems were detailed in an investigative program by German broadcaster ARD.

Boxing at the Tokyo Games was taken out of the control of the International Boxing Association two years ago after doubts about the integrity of bouts at the 2016 Rio de Janeiro Olympics and IOC concerns about its presidential elections. The IOC will now look at boxing's performance at the Tokyo Olympics and AIBA's ongoing reforms under president Umar Kremlev before deciding whether to reinstate its official recognition.

Boxing and weightlifting are among 28 core sports locked into the Olympic program, while host cities can apply to add others that appeal to a domestic market. Tokyo added baseball, softball and karate to this year's Games, and also gave debuts to skateboarding, sport climbing and surfing, which chimed with the IOC's attempt to woo young viewers.

Breakdancing will debut in Paris while skateboarding, climbing and surfing will be retained.

RACING AHEAD

From takeaway-friendly menus to automated sanitisers, restaurants are using technology to minimize contact

Amidst the scare over Covid-19 third wave, hospitality experts fasten their belts to ensure minimum loss in the coming days

ANILA KURIAN

WITH the growing concern over the third wave of Covid-19 and an upward graph of positive cases reported from Kerala and Maharashtra, the state government has imposed night curfew from 9 pm to 5 am to break the chain of Covid-19 transmission. Despite the fear, many are venturing out, calling it a 'revenge outing'.

Amidst the fear and night curfew, the hospitality industry, which was one of the worst-hit sector during the pandemic, has learnt a lesson or two from the past, and have made arrangements to ensure minimum loss in future.

For instance, Vietnamese restaurant Hanoi, in Indiranagar, recently opened with limited staff. Owner Nirav Rajani believes that the restaurant will not be severely hit as they do not have a liquor license.

"The most we can do at this point is be mentally prepared. We've kept a financial buffer and helped our staff with accommodation. We are now working on tweaking some of our food items to be delivery-friendly. There will be DIY kits and region focused meals, among others."

Suzy Q by 1522 on Queen's Road re-opened last month with 50% seating occupancy. Owners Anirudh Kheny and Chethan Hegde say that the previous lockdown was a learning experience. "We've installed automated sanitiser and soap dispensers. Since we have an outdoor seating facility, many customers are taking to that section. And since the new curfew rule, we take our last order by 8 pm and get everyone to leave by 9 pm," Kheny adds.

Some restaurants are utilising building space for the accommodation of the staff.

Owner chef Regi Mathew of Kappa Chakka Kandhari explains how they've accommodated their staff in the two floors above the restaurant in Koramangala. "All our staff is vaccinated and are staying with us because our speciality is regional Kerala food. For a total cover of 100 seats, we are now accommodating only 50 and have a set menu," Mathew says.

When the customer makes a reservation, the menu is sent to them through WhatsApp to save time and to ensure minimal contact with the waiters.

As for hotels, staycations have become more popular. Conrad Bengaluru recently started Great Small Breaks (GSB) as a way to encourage parents to have a staycation with children. General manager Srijan Vadhera says, "Everything we offer for families as part of GSB is contactless. From play area to activities like colouring, cooking and gaming, are sanitised and kept ready before the kids arrive. Only the staff who is fully vaccinated will attend the guests."

The hotel has added an online ambulance service, oxygen concentrator, room for quarantine and a visiting doctor, if necessary.

However, for pubs and bar owners, the curfew has not been a favourable one.

Nerall Bakhai of Stories-The Brew Chapter says, "It's a huge loss for the business but perhaps newer methods like how the government allowed growlers for takeaway will help again. However, the craze to get growlers home also died down after two weeks of the rule."

Reminiscing the contribution of 'Tokyo Ranganathan', who was trained at Bengaluru's MEG, and participated in major national and international boxing tournaments

Boxing to fame

SANATH PRASAD

WHILE Indian boxers put up a brave fight and also won a medal at the Tokyo Olympics 2020, here's a flashback of the famous boxer of yesteryears—M Ranganathan, popularly known as Tokyo Ranganathan.

The most talked about OTT release Sarpatta Parambarai-based on North Madras boxing culture also highlights the poster of Ranganathan to honour the contribution of the fighter. Boxers from the Madras Engineering Group (MEG), Bengaluru, recall that Ranganathan was known for his 'scientific boxing' skills, knockout punches, his sweeping left hooks and ferocious right cross.

Born in Vellore, Tamil Nadu, Ranganathan joined the Indian Army at the age of 15 under boys' services. He was trained at MEG centre in Bengaluru and spent 40 years in the city working his way out to major national and international tournaments.

According to R Premanathan, elder son of Ranganathan, he started his boxing career in 1948. "My father used to practise at least 300 to 400 fights before any major events. He won the national title from 1956-1960 during which there was no opponent willing to face him in the welterweight category for the national match held at Calcutta in 1957," recalls Premanathan who is also a boxing coach in Vellore.

Ranganathan was also selected for the South East Asian Games at Tokyo, in 1958 after defeating Olympian Ron Norris. "Impressed by his scientific skills, he was called upon by the Crown Prince of Japan, Akhito for the Royal Host. Although he did not win any medal at the event, he went up till the qualifying round which was a big achievement back then. After he returned to India, his fans and the media fondly called him Tokyo Ranganathan," says Premanathan, adding that his father though was a left handed boxer but he used to change to right depending upon the opponent's moves.

Arjuna Awardee and boxer, Muniswamy Venu says, "He (Ranganathan) was a tall and tough-built personality. He used to gauge the opponent's strengths and weaknesses thoroughly and attack. Although, I vaguely remember my relationship with him, his case studies really helped upcoming boxers, including me, to box better."

Before his retirement from the game, Ranganathan participated in several professional boxing tournaments from 1971 to 1980 including the North Madras boxing clubs. During the 1980s, he started a boxing club at Vellore to train aspiring boxers. He passed away in 1998.

Say Trees, a city-based environmental group, hosted a virtual edition of India Earth Summit, to make significant impact on global climate by 2030

COUNTDOWN TO SUSTAINABLE CLIME

ROSHNE BALASUBRAMANIAN

OVER the last few decades, extreme weather events have continued to plague countries across the globe, urging the need for immediate climate actions. In an attempt to realise the conversations around climate change and translate it into reality by 2030, Say Trees, a Bengaluru-based environmental group hosted the virtual edition of the annual India Earth Summit 10, recently.

"It's imperative that we reverse the damage we've caused over the past three decades. The India Earth Summit is built on a dream and an ambition that we must come together to make a significant impact by 2030," said Durgesh Agrahari, head, programs and partnerships, Say Trees.

The long-term vision of the summit is to provide a platform to showcase, learn, support, learn and reward the impactful work of those working in the conservation, sustainability and regenerative spaces, mitigate damage, and act as a bridge between stakeholders to co-create. "We will have a clear and limited goal for each year and these goals will be revisited, tracked and course-corrected," he added.

Satya S Tripati, secretary-general, Global Alliance for a Sustainable Planet, who presided as the keynote speaker, said that India has the unhappy distinction of having 21 of the worst cities on the planet in terms of air pollution.

"India's total emissions are under 3 gigatons per annum. While it places us at a number behind China and the US, anthropogenic climate change makes it important for us to look at how many humans are in a certain country rather than going by the numbers, which can be misleading," he stated.

The per capita footprint of every Indian is projected to be under 1.9 tons per capita. "To have the best chance of avoiding a 2-degree rise in global temperatures, the average global carbon footprint per year needs to drop under 2 tons by 2050. Those countries in the tropics will be the worst victims of rising sea levels. So, India should act and our actions should be irrespective of the current emissions and mitigation," he emphasised.

The World Meteorological Organisation points that there is a 70 per cent chance of the world hitting 1.5 degrees of global warming in the next five years. "If this can happen in the next five to 10 years then we are in a terrible space to start with," says Tripati, adding that it is important to have conversations around not just the demands but also about the supply of resources, for climate action goals to reach fruition.

PARIVRTTA ARDHA UTKATASANA

(REVOLVED HALF CHAIR POSE)

In Sanskrit, 'parivrtta' means revolved, 'ardha' means half, 'utkata' means intense and 'asana' means pose. It is an intermediate standing pose with a twist that involves leg strength, balance and flexibility. In this asana, the drishti is toward the sky. In a more challenging leg position, stand on the leg that supports the elbow and cross the opposite leg over that thigh. In addition to its physical benefits, which include a strong spinal stretch, this asana is believed to be energizing, while also reducing stress and anxiety. It is also thought to activate the Manipura (navel or solar plexus) Chakra, associated with confidence, self-esteem and transforming power.

STEPS

- Stand with your feet parallel to each other, toes touching and the heels marginally separated. Twist profoundly into the knees, and lift arms up over the head.
- Bring your hands in front of the chest in Namaskar pose.
- Come into a chair pose with knees together and weight mostly in your heels.
- Inhale to lengthen your spine. Exhale to hinge forward then twist to your right, hooking your left elbow outside your right thigh.
- Press your palms together to create more space between your collarbones.
- Keep your knees together. Lower your hips an extra inch.
- Hold this pose for 3-5 breaths before releasing to a forward fold.
- Finally, exhale and return to chair pose and repeat on the other side.

BENEFITS

- Improves digestion, increases metabolism.
- Helps relieve stiffness in shoulders, spine, upper back and neck.
- Helps strengthen and stretch calf muscles.
- Improves the motion in the ankles.
- Stimulates the abdominal organs and heart; opens the chest.
- Enhances the movement in your lower legs.

LIMITATIONS

- This asana is not ideal for those suffering from insomnia, headache, low blood pressure, ankle or knee injury.
- Proper guidance is a must for practitioners who have shoulder injury and lower back pain. It should be avoided by women during pregnancy.

Heritage weaves of India

PAIRED WITH PANACHE
Anuja Pandey

(The author is social media influencer @loftyspectrums and a lifestyle coach)

MY romance with heritage weaves and handloom saris began from childhood. When I would see my mother, grandmoms and aunts in these beautiful weaves carrying the six yard fabric with pride and elegance, I had little idea that this legacy was laying foundation and shaping my lifelong romance for culture and heritage. The visits to the weavers' communities and saree shops with my aunts at our ancestral home in Varanasi, evolved my sartorial choices and predilection for these weaves. Benaras is known for its most exclusive Handwoven Sarees; Weaves like Brocade, 'Kadhuan', 'Kadiyal', 'Katruan', Cutwork, 'Jamawar', 'Tanchoi' in Mulberry Silk, 'Tasar' Silk, 'Muga' Silk, Kora Silk, Raw Silk & Cotton Silk, are the heirlooms of our heritage. The signature products of Banarasi looms are the variety of classic makeovers and brocade on muslin and silk.

Silk or handloom saree is synonymous with tradition and it would hold its importance always despite all odds. No matter how modern or 'westernised' a woman gets or how expensive a sari gets, a quintessential Kanjeevaram or Benarasi would always be worn for festivals or weddings in any Indian family and would never go out of vogue. The eye for exquisite details and uncompromising stand on quality of heritage weaves is what has earned India its name.

Throughout the rich history and culture of India, handloom sarees have received patronage from women all over the world. Women across Europe during British Raj and other inspiring women have embraced these classic motifs and patterns bringing forth the intrinsic splendour of handloom. Sarees are a part of the power dressing repertoire for women bureaucrats as well. Dr Shalini Rajneesh, IAS, Additional Chief Secretary says, "Handloom and heritage weaves of India make us proud of our culture and stand out as a unique power dressing tool too! Long live our weavers. We need to showcase their creativity in global digital world to enhance their economic returns and make handlooms a sustainable livelihood."

The traditional 'Kanchipuram' or a 'Jamdani' saree have delicate interplay of intricate motifs weaved flawlessly. The typical motifs for Kanchipuram saris are Mayil-kannu (peacock eye), rudraksha's, malli-moggu (Jasmine drops). There is no motif that is completely new, they have all evolved from the temple architecture and, again, they symbolise the confluence of different sects and different energies. The peacock is the vehicle of Lord Murugan, thus a representation of Shiva and chakra is the symbol of Lord Vishnu. These motifs are used in Paithani, Benarasi and many more but in different forms. Jamdani draws its inspiration for motifs from nature, like flowers, petals, creepers etc. "India has a very enriching heritage with such diverse hand woven textiles that each time I see a weaver doing his work I am overawed by it. As a classical dancer, I always wore hand woven cotton and silks and there is undoubtedly a healing factor to it," says Vasantha Vaikunth, president of WICCI Karnataka Culture and Heritage.

There could be no Tansen without an Akbar, no Leonardo Vinci without a Medici and no Gulzar without a Bimal Roy. Just like how art needs its patrons to survive, handloom and heritage weaves need patrons to thrive.

CARROM WITH A DICE

WHAT'S NEW?

Cubitos

I've had it for a while now, but only got to play Cubitos a few days ago and I fully intend on making up for lost time. This dice-rolling push-your-luck race game is phenomenal fun, and features a staggering amount of variety right in the base box.

Cryptid: Urban Legends

There have been some great deduction games in the last couple of years, one of the best of which was Cryptid. Thus the announcement of a sequel of sorts is exciting, particularly so because it's a two-player only game that looks to be a game of cat and mouse.

(Arjun is a gamer, book lover and an all-round renaissance man)

GROWING up, carrom was an inevitable part of Sunday afternoons. We're not talking about carrom today; instead, we're talking about a game that has traces of carrom (and that other classic, crokinole) in its DNA — JamSumo.

Except that that's not quite accurate. JamSumo is just a wooden board, 24 dice in four colours, and a sheet of paper with the rules to both games printed. That's right, 'both'; because you can play two games with those components, one called Jam and the other called Sumo.

Jam is straightforward — your goal is to flick your dice, and get them to fall through the hole located in the centre of the board. If you do so, it's removed from the game and the first player to eliminate all their dice ends the round. At that point, every other player immediately scores negative points equal to the sum of the values of their remaining dice.

Sumo is equally simple — each player arranges their dice in one of the corners of the board, and then they take turns flicking one of them at a time. Your goal in Sumo is to knock your opponents' dice off the board (off the sides or through the hole, doesn't matter which); but if your flick fails to make contact with an opponent, you lose one of your dice. As soon as one player loses all their dice, the round ends and everybody scores points equal to the sum of the values of their remaining dice. In both Jam and Sumo, you play as many rounds as you have players and whoever has the highest score wins.

Using dice as your pieces was a brilliant design choice, because it gives each individual piece a unique value. When playing Jam, a six is a terrible thing to have — that's -6 to your score, potentially! — so it becomes a priority to eliminate that die. Conversely in Sumo, you want to guard your precious fives and sixes and hope they survive the round. This twist creates heightens the risk-reward element; which is always so important in a dexterity game. Also, Sumo's added wrinkle of eliminating dice that fail to strike at least one opponent is amazing — it not only forces you to employ a little more finesse, but it also means that there are only ever a couple of bad shots separating the player who looks to be running away with it and the one who looks to be done and dusted.

JamSumo is the creation of one man, Gavin Birnbaum — he not only designed it, he also made the first few copies himself by hand. Thankfully, it can be found easily now as the result of a licensing deal but it's still not widely available. It's worth the effort — this is a game that's worth your time. For me, personally, it brings back memories of those long-ago Sunday afternoons playing carrom with (and losing badly to) my grandfather; and that's why it's never leaving my collection.

A sip of royaltea with Crusader Kings 3

IF I was taught history and politics through the lens of Crusader Kings 3, I would have appreciated its complexity better. Crusader Kings mixes history with warfare strategy, diplomacy, intrigue, religion, and economics. Everything could happen, and nothing could happen. You could start as a titled owner of land stretching from anywhere across Western Europe to East Asia. You could even be an obscure peasant, who attempts to climb up the dynastic ladder. Here's one of a million possible stories:

I am Rani Tiruvanaikkavi of house Kelrayan (somewhere around the now Chennai). I have five children, and amazing diplomacy skills. However, I hasten a war against the house Pandya, which I lose terribly. It ends with my daughter imprisoned. I am forced to use my advantageous "hook" to free my daughter. I am angry, I could have used that hook to threaten a neighbouring king into giving me money instead.

I try to make my offspring imbibe my diplomacy skills. But they either end up too shy to carry my legacy, or with chronic pneumonia. Or imprisoned (I forget to help release them; they hate me now). I grow weary of them and decide to use them as political bargaining chips. I forge suitable allies across the country by arranging their marriages. While my diplomacy skills help in solidifying trade deals, my consistent martial disadvantage causes my kingdom to disintegrate and fall prey to the growing Pallava empire. My reign is disrupted halfway through my reconstruction of the Thanjavur temple. A dream of creating a new faith dies with me.

In my defence, my poor kingdom ruling skills doesn't extend across the different historic ages. I managed to become the king of Ireland in my tutorial run of the game. Also in my defence, there is no wrong way to play the game. It's a "dynasty simulator". Winning isn't the end to the game. The strategy engine weaves thousands of stories based on the location, era, and choices. It is more interesting than a history book, because new events are creatively presented. A little ding: your spymaster has the latest gossip from the realm. A sad tune: You lost the last battle.

CK3 is a strategy game. It is available for the PC, but it requires experience in the genre, if you want to appreciate the breadth of choices. A rating of 100 gold coins for the game, since its scheme to get me on to tis new format was successful.

The RX 100 and Disco Raja actor has been zeroed in to play the female lead in the Pan India film Head Bush and will appear alongside Dhananjay in the period gangster drama. Official confirmation was made by the production house on social media platforms.

Payal's name has been quite popular in the Kannada film industry for some time now. A few filmmakers were keen on roping in the actor for their respective films, and she has finally made her foray into Sandalwood with Head Bush.

Dhananjay

The actor was last seen in Anaganaga O Athidhi, and she currently is part of Angel (Tamil) and Kirathaka (Telugu) which are in different stages of production.

Rachel David and Krishna from Love Mocktail 2

'DIRECTING LOVE MOCKTAIL 2 WAS CHALLENGING'

...says actor-director-producer Krishna, who is happy to wrap the romantic drama

CE FEATURES

ACTOR-director Krishna is happy to have finally wrapped up the shooting of Love Mocktail 2. He is now left with half a day of patchwork. The film, jointly produced by Krishna and Milana Nagaraj, has Rachel David playing the female lead. Krishna told CE that he is simultaneously handling the post-production and trimming the second half of the film. The actor is quite excited about the output.

The success of Love Mocktail has created bigger expectations for the sequel among fans, and Krishna says, "Love Mocktail 2 was challenging than for part 1. With the first film, I knew the route and how I should go about the story. Love Mocktail 2 happened just because of the appreciation I received from the audience. However, when I wanted to give more to the audience with the sequel, it became challenging," he says.

Krishna is now planning to be ready with the first copy in a month. However, he is yet to decide on when he wants to release the film in theatres. "The coronavirus situation does not permit us to plan the release date, and I will think about the release as and when everything is normal," says Krishna.

When asked if he has plans for opting for an OTT release, he says, "It again depends on how things pan out. If things get delayed for too long, I have to plan for an alternate way to release the film. As of now, I will get the film ready."

The film cast also consists of newcomer Sushmitha, Abilash, and Kushee Achar. With Nakul Abhayankar scoring the music, Love Mocktail 2 has cinematography by Sri Crazy Mindz. Meanwhile, Krishna, who has wrapped up Srikrishna@gmail.com, is almost done with choreographer-director Nagendra Prasad's Kannada debut. He also has Sugar Factory, and Love Me or Hate Me in the pipeline.

Stranger Things - 4 to premiere in 2022; new teaser released

CE FEATURES

The much-awaited fourth season of Netflix's teen supernatural series Stranger Things will premiere in 2022. The streamer announced the same through a new 30-second teaser from the season. Further, the footage provides a quick glance at the new season and also reveals a new monster.

Season 3, which streamed in July 2019, ended after the explosion aimed at destroying the Soviet lab to the Upside Down deep under the new Starcourt Mall. Joyce Byers (Winona Ryder) was seen taking her sons (Charlie Heaton, Noah Schnapp) and Eleven (Brown) out of the Indiana town to start a new life. The final scene took us to the far Eastern end of the USSR where guards are feeding a prisoner to an imprisoned Demogorgon, but "not the American," hinting at a possible return of David Harbour's character Hopper. Hopper's return was eventually confirmed through the first season 4 trailer. The second Eleven-focused trailer hinted at the rumored return of Dr Martin Brenner, played by Matthew Modine.

Stranger Things season 4 started production in February 2020 and was suspended a month later due to the escalating coronavirus pandemic, before resuming again in September.

Created by Matt and Ross Duffer, Stranger Things is produced by Monkey Massacre Productions & 21 Laps Entertainment. # SIDHARTH WAS THE PERFECT CHOICE FOR SHERSHAAH, SAYS VISHAL BATRA

CE FEATURES

Sidharth Malhotra has been garnering praise for shouldering the role of Captain Vikram Batra in the upcoming film, Shershaah. Sidharth spent time with Vikram Batra's friends and family to understand the late soldier better. The actor's meeting with Vishal Batra, Vikram Batra's brother gave him the vision to create the character.

Vishal Batra and his family were keen on Sidharth Malhotra playing Vikram Batra in the film. "When we met Sidharth for the first time we felt he had a lot of similarities with Vikram," Vishal Batra says. "During the course of our interaction with him, we found out that he was a very good human being, very humble, passionate, and a loving guy. Hence we thought he was a perfect choice to play Vikram's role."

Talking about Sidharth's performance in the film, Vishal Batra shares, "Since this is the first time Sidharth is playing the role of a real character in his career, I believe it was very important for him to get into the skin of the character. Since Vikram is generally known as the Shershaah, it was important for Sidharth to see the other side of Vikram's life, as a student, as a soldier, as an army officer, and definitely as a brother and a son.

Sidharth did a lot of hard work in understanding Vikram to the entirety. He interacted a lot with his friends, family members, and personally with me to understand Vikram's character, and I believe he has done a wonderful job and people will really love the action he has done in the movie."

Shershaah is directed by Vishnuvardhan. The film is releasing on Amazon Prime Video on August 12.
